Gordner, 1998 Recovery After Traumatic Brain Injury Barbara P. Uzzell, Henry H. Stonnington, 2014-02-04 Emotions behaviors thoughts creations planning daily physical activities and routines are programmed within our brains To acquire these capacities the brain takes time to fully develop a process that may take the first 20 years of life Disruptions of the brain involving neurons axons dendrites synapses neurotransmitters or brain infrastructure produce profound changes in development and functions of the one organ that makes us unique To understand the functions and development of the brain is difficult enough but to reverse the consequences of trauma and repair the damage is even more challenging To meet this challenge and increase understanding a host of disciplines working and communicating together are required The International Association for the Study of Traumatic Brain Injury tried to correct this limitation during its meetings of international clinicians researchers and scientists from many fields It was felt that many of the outstanding thoughts and ideas from the participants most recent meeting and from others working in the field of traumatic brain injury TBI should be shared This book was conceived not as proceedings of the conference but as a collection of knowledge for those working in the acute and chronic recovery aspects of head injury This book reflects the importance of the team approach to patients with TBI The chapter authors come from a diverse array of disciplines basic science neurosurgery neurology radiology psychology neuropsychology and legal consumer and speech language science Their contributions provide the most current research and the latest ways of managing a variety of aspects of TBI

Brain Injury and Neuropsychological

Rehabilitation Anne-Lise Christensen, Barbara P. Uzzell, 2014-01-02 Most individuals with brain damage experience a curtailment or loss of lifestyle without rehabilitation Improved methods and appropriately timed medical interventions now make it possible for more individuals to survive brain insults and to be assisted by rehabilitation neuropsychologists in achieving renewed commitment to life Damage to the brain the organ of human emotions and cognition reduces psychological functioning and realistic adaptation and the patient and his/her family are often encapsulated in the time prior to injury To regain part or most of the lifestyle lost an honest dedicated and realistic approach is required Neuropsychological rehabilitation can provide tools for this task provided that the most comprehensive elaborate and knowledge based methods are integrated in the training and provided that knowledge from many disciplines and from community environments and family is encompassed In the present book knowledge representing the development of neuropsychological rehabilitation during the past five years is collected from a conference titled Progress in Neuropsychological Rehabilitation The chapters are written by professionals who were invited to share their experiences from different areas within the field because of their expertise with processes involved in neuropsychological rehabilitation After a historical review the chapters follow a visible sequence from biology to neuropsychology and neuropharmacology Experts discuss the most advanced medical knowledge of the effect of injury on states of the organism The second part of the book is dedicated to the outcome and the economics of rehabilitation as well as plans for the future Finally a panel discussion addresses the overall concept Is rehabilitation worthwhile and ethical The reactions influenced by the cross cultural exchange of knowledge shed light on the essence and practice of today's neurorehabilitation

Neurobehavioral

Recovery from Head Injury Harvey S. Levin, 1987 This volume will repay the reader with a greatly enhanced understanding of the challenge facing head injured patients when they try to return to society The Lancet

Neurobehavioural

Disability and Social Handicap Following Traumatic Brain Injury Tom M. McMillan, Rodger Ll. Wood, 2013-11-12 Persisting neurobehavioural disability follows many forms of serious brain injury and acts as a major constraint on social independence Rehabilitation services are often not organised in a way which addresses the needs of people with such disability and relatively few professionals have experience in the clinical management of complex disability patterns which comprise the neurobehavioural syndrome This book is a compilation of chapters written by a group of clinicians with experience of post acute brain injury rehabilitation to ameliorate the social handicap experienced by a growing number of people who survive serious brain injury The aim of the book is to describe the nature of neurobehavioural disability how it translates into social handicap and what can be done to address the problems generated by such handicap through social and behavioural rehabilitation vocational training and family education Consideration is also given to evaluating post acute rehabilitation methods and selecting the most appropriate form of rehabilitation both in terms of clinical and cost effectiveness The book is aimed at clinical psychologists psychiatrists and neurologists working in brain injury rehabilitation plus all the rehabilitation disciplines and social workers The book will also be of interest to relatives of brain injured people who are seeking a better knowledge base in order to understand neurobehavioural disability Additionally the book should be helpful to the growing number of therapy care assistants case managers and support workers responsible for the day to day care of brain injured people in the community

Neuropsychological Rehabilitation Barbara A. Wilson, 2005-09-23 This book brings together theoretical and clinical aspects of Neuropsychological Rehabilitation Following an introductory chapter and a brief history of Neuropsychological Rehabilitation there are chapters on specific cognitive deficits attention executive deficits memory and language The next section addresses rehabilitation of emotional social and behavioural disorders Then comes a section on specific groups of people children people with dementia and people in reduced states of awareness Although the main focus of the book is on adults with non progressive brain injury these other groups are included as NR is being increasingly employed with them The book concludes with a chapter on systems of service delivery and another on the future of NR Thus this book covers a number of aspects of NR and is broader in outlook than most existing books in this area It presents current practice techniques in cognitive rehabilitation from a conceptual and theoretical perspective It offers both clinicians and researchers a sense of the research and theory underlying current clinical applications The main audience will be clinical neuropsychologists especially those working in rehabilitation Other audiences include clinical psychologists working with people who have mental health problems schizophrenia or are elderly occupational therapists speech and language therapists and rehabilitation doctors It is likely that some social workers nurses psychiatrists and neurologists will also want to read the book
