Making Development Sustainable Redefining Institutions Policy And Economics:

Making Development Sustainable Johan Holmberg, 1992-09 Although the idea of sustainable development is by now well established discussions of how to progress from concept to reality often become mired in the complexities of global politics and offer few concrete solutions While achieving sustainable development will undoubtedly require changes at the global level the authors of this book emphasize that patterns of sustainable development must be built from the bottom up They focus on methods for movement toward sustainability that can occur at the grassroots level This book presents an integrated series of essays on the policies for sustainable development from one of the leading policy research institutes for environmental and developmental issues It concentrates on the developing world and looks at the specific sectors to which policies must be applied Beginning with a discussion of what constitutes sustainable development it goes on to examine the institutional measures needed to mobilize human resources for change and the economic policies for sustainable natural resource management It then considers the policies needed in agriculture urban development industry forests drylands energy use finance population and consumption The book ends with a discussion of the potential for financing new policy initiatives and the pressing need to reduce population growth and profligate consumption Throughout it demonstrates how those directly involved are best suited to manage their environments and resources Policies for sustainable development depend upon the experience and resourcefulness of local people and require that they control their own futures IBSS: Economics: 1993 Vol 42, 1994 This bibliography lists the most important works published in economics in 1993 Renowned for its international coverage and rigorous selection procedures the IBSS provides researchers and librarians with the most comprehensive and scholarly bibliographic service available in the social sciences The IBSS is compiled by the British Library of Political and Economic Science at the London School of Economics one of the world's leading social science institutions Published annually the IBSS is available in four subject areas anthropology economics political science and sociology

Defining Sustainable Development for Our Common Future Iris Borowy, 2013-12-04 The UN World Commission on Environment and Development chaired by former Norwegian Prime Minister Gro Harlem Brundtland alerted the world to the urgency of making progress toward economic development that could be sustained without depleting natural resources or harming the environment Written by an international group of politicians civil servants and experts on the environment and development the Brundtland Report changed sustainable development from a physical notion to one based on social economic and environmental issues This book positions the Brundtland Commission as a key event within a longer series of international reactions to pressing problems of global poverty and environmental degradation It shows that its report Our Common Future published in 1987 covered much more than its definition of sustainable development as development that meets the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs for which it became best known It also addressed a long list of issues which remain unresolved today The book explores how the work of the Commission juggled contradictory expectations and world views which existed within the Commission and beyond and drew on the concept of sustainable development as a way to reconcile profound differences. The result was both an immense success and disappointment. Coining an irresistibly simple definition enabled the Brundtland Commission to place sustainability firmly on the international agenda. This definition gained acceptability for a potentially divisive concept but it also diverted attention from underlying demands for fundamental political and social changes. Meanwhile the central message of the Commission, the need to make inconvenient sustainability considerations a part of global politics as much as of everyday life, has been sidelined. The book thus assesses to what extent the Brundtland Commission represented an immense step forward or a missed opportunity.

Sustainable Development as a Civilizational Revolution Artur Pawlowski, 2011-05-24

As a concept, sustainable development is in conflict with traditional development based upon economic growth. Sustainable development is an attempt to formulate a programme that integrates different aspects: ecological, social and economical, which were usually considered as separate from each other. Sustainable Development as a Civilizational Revolution: A Multidisciplinary Approach to the Challenges of the 21st Century expands the discussion on sustainable development including ethical, technical, technological, legal and political aspects. Since it is not possible to solve environmental problems solely by technical means without taking into account economic or environmental aspects, the degree to which they overlap is discussed. In addition, it is necessary to emphasize the importance of social and moral considerations. A clean environment is a valuable attribute but its achievement at the expense of high unemployment or some other form of severe social conflict cannot be regarded as action in line with the sustainable development principle. The tremendous scope of these changes makes it reasonable to expect this new vision for development to achieve the status of a revolution comparable to those known from the past: the agricultural, scientific and industrial revolutions. Sustainable Development as a Civilizational Revolution: A Multidisciplinary Approach to the Challenges of the 21st Century will be invaluable to graduate and post graduate students following advanced courses on sustainable development, scientists dealing with sustainable development and academia interested in environmental and social sciences.

A Survey of Sustainable Development Jonathan Harris, Timothy Wise, Kevin Gallagher, Neva R. Goodwin, 2013-04-16

Perpetual economic growth is physically impossible on a planet with finite resources. Many concerned with humanity's future have focused on the concept of sustainable development as an alternative as they seek means of achieving current economic and social goals without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own goals. Sustainable development brings together elements of economics, public policy, sociology, ecology, resource management and other related areas and while the term has become quite popular, it is rarely defined and even less often is it understood. A Survey of Sustainable Development addresses that problem by bringing together in a single volume the most important works on sustainable human and economic development.

It offers a broad overview of the subject and gives the reader a quick and thorough guide to this highly diffuse topic. The volume offers ten sections on topics including economic and social dimensions of sustainable development, the North-South balance, population and the demographic transition, agriculture and renewable resources, energy and materials use, globalization and corporate responsibility, local and national strategies. Each section is introduced with an essay by one of the volume editors that provides an overview of the subject and a summary of the mainstream literature, followed by two to three page abstracts of the most important articles or book chapters on the topic. A Survey of Sustainable Development is the sixth and final volume in the Frontier Issues of Economic Thought series produced by the Global Development and Environment Institute at Tufts University. Each book brings together the most important articles and book chapters in a frontier area of economics where important new work is being done but has not yet been incorporated into the mainstream of economic study. The book is an essential reference for students and scholars concerned with economics, environmental studies, public policy and administration, international development and a broad range of related fields.

Planning for Sustainability Stephen M. Wheeler, 2004-08-19 Existing patterns of urbanization are unsustainable in the long run. Current development practices consume enormous amounts of land and resources, damage local ecosystems, produce pollutants, create huge inequalities between groups of people and undermine local community and quality of life. Unfortunately, planning has itself led to many unsustainable development practices. Planning for Sustainability presents a straightforward systematic analysis of how more sustainable cities and towns can be brought about. It does so in a highly readable manner that considers in turn each scale of planning: international, national, regional, municipal, neighbourhood, site and building. In the process, it illustrates how sustainability initiatives at these different scales interrelate and how an overall framework can be developed for more livable communities.

Developing Sustainable Agriculture and Community

Lionel J. "Bo" Beaulieu, Jeffrey Jordan, 2014-01-21 This book illustrates the ways in which communities can strengthen the links and set the stage for long-term partnerships between sustainable agriculture and sustainable rural community development initiatives. It provides lessons learned first from the community development literature that can help shape sustainable agriculture strategies and second from the sustainable agriculture literature that can prove useful in moulding sound and effective community development strategies. The threads that weave the chapters together is the commitment to a building and expanding the community capital resources that have important bearing on the sustainability of agriculture and the broader community of which it is a part. Certainly the success of the agriculture community partnerships is rooted in one critical ingredient: social capital. To be effective over the long term, sustainable development depends on a network of people drawn from a wide array of interests who have a strong trusting relationship with one another and who are willing to work together in responding to the economic, environmental and social challenges facing agriculture and community alike. At the same time, strategies that work to strengthen the stock of all seven types of community capitals are important to pursue. It is balanced investments in all seven types of community capitals that will contribute to the emergence of community agency the ability of local people to act in a proactive manner in managing utilizing and enhancing local resources With the emergence of community agency an important step in the pursuit of a sustainable future for both agriculture and community is possible This book was published as a special issue of Community Development

Planning for Sustainability Stephen

Wheeler,2013-07-18 How can human communities sustain a long term existence on a small planet This challenge grows ever more urgent as the threat of global warming increases Planning for Sustainability presents a wide ranging intellectually well grounded and accessible introduction to the concept of planning for more sustainable and livable communities The text explores topics such as how more compact and walkable cities and towns might be created how local ecosystems can be restored how social inequalities might be reduced how greenhouse gas emissions might be lowered and how more sustainable forms of economic development can be brought about The second edition has been extensively revised and updated throughout including an improved structure with chapters now organized under three sections the nature of sustainable planning issues central to sustainable planning and scales of sustainable planning New material includes greater discussion of climate change urban food systems the relationships between public health and the urban environment and international development Building on past schools of planning theory Planning for Sustainability lays out a sustainability planning framework that pays special attention to the rapidly evolving institutions and power structures of a globalizing world By considering in turn each scale of planning international national regional municipal neighborhood and site and building the book illustrates how sustainability initiatives at different levels can interrelate Only by weaving together planning initiatives and institutions at different scales and by integrating efforts across disciplines can we move towards long term human and ecological well being
