Canadian Missionaries, Indigenous Peoples Alwyn Austin, Jamie S. Scott, 2005-01-01 Christian missions and missionaries have had a distinctive role in Canada's cultural history With Canadian Missionaries Indigenous Peoples Alwyn Austin and Jamie S Scott have brought together new and established Canadian scholars to examine the encounters between Christian Roman Catholic and Protestant missionaries and the indigenous peoples with whom they worked in nineteenth and twentieth century domestic and overseas missions This tightly integrated collection is divided into three sections The first contains essays on missionaries and converts in western Canada and in the arctic The essays in the second section investigate various facets of the Canadian missionary presence and its legacy in east Asia India and Africa The third section examines the motives and methods of missionaries as important contributors to Canadian museum holdings of artefacts from Huronia Kahnawaga and Alaska as well as China and the South Pacific Broadly adopting a postcolonial perspective Canadian Missionaries Indigenous Peoples contributes greatly to the understanding of missionaries not only as purveyors of western religious values but also as vehicles for cultural exchange between Native and non Native Canadians as well as between Canadians and the indigenous peoples of other countries

Canada's 1960s Bryan Palmer, 2008-03-29 Rebellious youth the Cold War New Left radicalism Pierre Trudeau Red Power Quebec's call for Revolution Marshall McLuhan these are just some of the major forces and figures that come to mind at the slightest mention of the 1960s in Canada Focusing on the major movements and personalities of the time as well as the lasting influence of the period Canada's 1960s examines the legacy of this rebellious decade's impact on contemporary notions of Canadian identity Bryan D Palmer demonstrates how after massive postwar immigration new political movements and at times violent protest Canada could no longer be viewed in the old ways National identity long rooted in notions of Canada as a white settler Dominion of the North marked profoundly by its origins as part of the British Empire had become unsettled Concerned with how Canadians entered the Sixties relatively secure in their national identities Palmer explores the forces that contributed to the post 1970 uncertainty about what it is to be Canadian Tracing the significance of dissent and upheaval among youth trade unionists university students Native peoples and Quebecois Palmer shows how the Sixties ended the entrenched nineteenth century notions of Canada The irony of this rebellious era however was that while it promised so much in the way of change it failed to provide a new understanding of Canadian national identity A compelling and highly accessible work of interpretive history Canada's 1960s is the book of the decade about an era many regard as the most turbulent and significant since the years of the Great Depression and World War II Women and Indigenous Religions Sylvia Marcos, Cheryl A. Kirk-Duggan, Lillian Ashcraft-Eason, Karen Jo Torjesen, 2010-07-01 This book examines the critical and often undervalued contributions of women to the culture well being and subsistence of their communities as active powerful and wise ritual specialists From the Dalit midwives in India to the women of the Nahua region in the state of Morelos Mexico from the indigenous nations in Turtle Island in Canada to the shamans male and female of South Korea and Vietnam there are still many vital indigenous cultures around the world in which women often hold positions of religious authority and leadership Women and Indigenous Religions addresses specific issues in the study of religion such as the multifaceted tensions between indigenous traditions and gender and the genealogy of positions of authority in religion or spiritual matters A close examination reveals that native religions with their women specialists are still a source of inspiration for millions of men and women even in the advanced areas in the world This fact challenges the opinion that indigenous cultures are becoming extinct The Oxford Handbook of Canadian Literature Cynthia Conchita Sugars, 2016 The Oxford Handbook of Canadian Literature provides a broad ranging introduction to some of the key critical fields genres and periods in Canadian literary studies The essays in this volume written by prominent theorists in the field reflect the plurality of critical perspectives regional and historical specializations and theoretical positions that constitute the field of Canadian literary criticism across a range of genres and historical periods The volume provides a dynamic introduction to current areas of critical interest including 1 attention to the links between the literary and the public sphere encompassing such topics as neoliberalism trauma and memory citizenship material culture literary prizes disability studies literature and history digital cultures globalization studies and environmentalism or ecocriticism 2 interest in Indigenous literatures and settler Indigenous relations 3 attention to multiple diasporic and postcolonial contexts within Canada 4 interest in the institutionalization of Canadian literature as a discipline 5 a turn towards book history and literary history with a renewed interest in early Canadian literature 6 a growing interest in articulating the affective character of the literary including an interest in affect theory mourning melancholy haunting memory and autobiography The book represents a diverse array of interests from the revival of early Canadian writing to the continued interest in Indigenous regional and diasporic traditions to more recent discussions of globalization market forces and neoliberalism It includes a distinct section dedicated to Indigenous literatures and traditions as well as a section that reflects on the discipline of Canadian literature as a whole Children, Young People and Care John Horton, Michelle Pyer, 2017-04-28 The very notions of childhood and youth are intimately connected to contemporary norms practices and spaces of care caring and care giving The provision of care is widely figured as both the primary responsibility of parents carers and practitioners who work with children and young people and the primary factor in shaping children and young people's development education socialisation wellbeing and contentment However children and young people themselves are rarely figured as key actors in the provision of care An overwhelming presumption that children and young people are to be cared for has effectively marginalised their agency and responsibilities as carers or in relation to practices and spaces of care Bringing together a significant array of multidisciplinary work on children young people and families this collection draws together new research on the diverse lives and experiences of children and young people as carers as cared for and in relation to spaces and institutions of care It is the first collection specifically devoted to the subject of care in relation to childhood and youth As such the book will be a key resource for academics practitioners and students seeking leading edge empirical and conceptual material on this topic

Aboriginal Peoples in Canadian Cities Heather A. Howard,Craig Proulx,2011-04-12 Since the 1970s Aboriginal people have been more likely to live in Canadian cities than on reserves or in rural areas Aboriginal rural to urban migration and the development of urban Aboriginal communities represent one of the most significant shifts in the histories and cultures of Aboriginal peoples in Canada. The essays in Aboriginal Peoples in Canadian Cities: Transformations and Continuities are from contributors directly engaged in urban Aboriginal communities; they draw on extensive ethnographic research on and by Aboriginal people and their own lived experiences. The interdisciplinary studies of urban Aboriginal community and identity collected in this volume offer narratives of unique experiences and aspects of urban Aboriginal life. They provide innovative perspectives on cultural transformation and continuity and demonstrate how comparative examinations of the diversity within and across urban Aboriginal experiences contribute to broader understandings of the relationship between Aboriginal peoples and the Canadian state and to theoretical debates about power dynamics in the production of community and in processes of identity formation.

Empire, Education, and Indigenous Childhoods Helen May, Baljit Kaur, 2016-05-06 Taking up a little known story of education, schooling and missionary endeavor, Helen May, Baljit Kaur and Larry Prochner focus on the experiences of very young native children in three British colonies. In missionary settlements across the northern part of the North Island of New Zealand, Upper Canada and British-controlled India, experimental British ventures for placing young children of the poor in infant schools were simultaneously transported to and adopted for all three colonies. From the 1820s to the 1850s, this transplantation of Britain's infant schools to its distant colonies was deemed a radical and enlightened tool that was meant to hasten the conversion of heathen peoples by missionaries to Christianity and to European modes of civilization. The intertwined legacies of European exploration, enlightenment ideals, education and empire building, the authors argue, provided a springboard for British colonial and missionary activity across the globe during the nineteenth century. Informed by archival research and focused on the shared as well as unique aspects of the infant schools' colonial experience, Empire, Education, and Indigenous Childhoods illuminates both the pervasiveness of missionary education and the diverse contexts in which its attendant ideals were applied.

Rhetoric and Settler Inertia Patrick Belanger, 2019-05-23 Rhetoric and Settler Inertia: Strategies of Canadian Decolonization explores how communication might accelerate decolonial actions in Canada. Tracing a middle path between essential Indigenous-focused calls for resurgence and idealistic appeals to settler conscience, Patrick Belanger identifies communication forms that can generate settler support for decolonization. Accenting the importance of both Indigenous and settler audiences, this book suggests the promise of decolonial rhetoric framed in the language of mutual benefit.
