Twentieth Century International Relations: Europe in the international system Michael Cox, 2006 Holocaust Monuments and National Memory Peter Carrier, 2006-09-01 Since 1989 two sites of memory with respect to the deportation and persecution of Jews in France and Germany during the Second World War have received intense public attention the Velodrome in Paris and the Monument for the Murdered Jews of Europe or Holocaust Monument in Berlin Why is this so Both monuments the author argues are unique in the history of memorial projects Although they are genuine sites of memory neither monument celebrates history but rather serve as platforms for the deliberation negotiation and promotion of social consensus over the memorial status of war crimes in France and Germany The debates over these monuments indicate that it is the communication among members of the public via the mass media rather than qualities inherent in the sites themselves which transformed these sites into symbols beyond traditional conceptions of heritage and patriotism Characters in Fictional Worlds Jens Eder, Fotis Jannidis, Ralf Schneider, 2010 Although fictional characters have long dominated the reception of literature films television programs comics and other media products only recently have they begun to attract their due attention in literary and media theory The book systematically surveys today's diverse and at times conflicting theoretical perspectives on fictional character spanning research on topics such as the differences between fictional characters and real persons the ontological status of characters the strategies of their representation and characterization the psychology of their reception as well as their specific forms and constellations in and across different media from the book to the internet International Politics, 2001 Europe - On Air Suzanne Lommers, 2012 During the interwar years broadcast radio became a popular way for Europeans to consume local national and international news The medium not only began to shape European policy and politics but also laid the foundation for European unification and global interconnectedness In Europe On Air Suzanne Lommers has documented the rich and often underexposed history of broadcast radio through the lens of international European relations She specifically explores the roles of Radio Moscow Radio Luxembourg Vatican Radio and the International Broadcasting Union as institutions that played an important role in national identities and establishing standards for broadcasting The radio also offered new opportunities to politicians who seized upon a vibrant and more direct way to communicate with their constituents Essential reading for scholars of technology and European history Europe On Air reveals broadcast radio to be a technology that revolutionized international relations during the brief respite between the chaos of war in Europe Attitudes Towards Europe Colin Good, 2017-09-29 An innovative collaborative research project conducted jointly at Durham University and the Institut für deutsche Sprache in Mannheim Germany It focuses on the study of public debates on economic and political integration of Europe in both Britain and Germany and how these debates have developed in the post war period up to the 1990s The following topics are investigated Euro discourse and the new media British national identity in the European context representations of Germany in the context of European integration in Margaret Thatcher's autobiographies European

Keys to Controversies Astrid Franke, 1999 Stereotypes are usually seen as expression of racism and defamation but they also play a role in cognition and contribute to the processes of perceiving and understanding other social groups and cultures Based on this ambivalence this study inquires into the function of stereotypes and employs the term as a key to the analysis of literary and cultural texts It illuminates how different aesthetic projects relate to each other and interweave with artistic and political controversies of American Modernism
