Nelson, 1993-06-03 The slowdown of growth in Western industrialized nations in the last twenty years along with the rise of Japan as a major economic and technological power and enhanced technical sophistication of Taiwan Korea and other NICs has led to what the authors believe to be a techno nationalism This combines a strong belief that technological capabilities of a nation's firms are a key source of their competitive process with a belief that these capabilities are in a sense national and can be built by national action This book is about these national systems of technical innovation The heart of the work contains studies of seventeen countries from large market oriented industrialized ones to several smaller high income ones including a number of newly industrialized states as well. Clearly written, this work highlights institutions and mechanisms which support technical innovation, showing similarities, differences, and their sources across nations, making this work accessible to students as well as the scholars of innovation. Universities in the National Innovation Systems V. V. Krishna, 2017-07-31. This volume looks at the role of universities in the National Innovation Systems in economies of the Asia Pacific. It examines the tremendous growth of human and knowledge capital made possible by teaching and research excellence in major universities along with how universities are being repositioned as frontiers of innovation in the National Systems of Innovation. The chapters assess the impact of globalisation and innovation together with the emergence of new knowledge sites extended to the Asia Pacific region. With contributions by experts and academics and key case studies, this book will be useful to scholars and researchers in higher education, development studies, public policy, economics, business, and resource management, Asian studies, as well as policymakers. National Innovation Systems, Social Inclusion and Development Gabriela Dutrénit, Judith Sutz, 2014-08-29. This unique book brings together new perspectives on inclusive development and the kinds of science, technology, and innovation that can foster this form of development. Asia's Innovation Systems in Transition Jan Vang, 2006-01-01. The success of Asian economies, first Japan, then Taiwan, South Korea, Singapore, Hong Kong, and more recently China and India, has made it tempting to look for an Asian model of development. However, the strength of Asian development lies less in strategies that reproduce successful national systems of innovation and more in the capacity for institutional change to open up new development trajectories with greater emphasis on knowledge and learning. The select group of contributors demonstrate that although there are important differences among Asian countries in terms of institutional set.

Innovation Systems and Capabilities in Developing Regions Willie Siyanbola, Olumuyiwa Olamide, 2016-05-23. In today's knowledge-driven world, innovation and innovation systems have become key policy issues. However, the extent of knowledge that is available on these concepts in less developed countries is still relatively low. Much of what we know about innovation theory and systems has come from the developed countries and reflects their world view. This apparent knowledge deficit has major implications for less developed countries. Innovation Systems and Capabilities in Developing Regions adds to the growing body of knowledge on developing countries. The theoretical and empirical case studies presented here advance the notion that while developing countries may not engage in frontier research, a critical knowledge base upon which these countries compete for global markets is emerging. There is evidence that state and non-state actors are increasingly emphasising policies that sit within the framework of national innovation systems. This book illuminates this shift in policy competence at national levels. The contributions in this volume highlight the need for thorough understanding of the role of diffusion-based innovation linked to technology transfer and acquisition. They also provide empirical evidence on the drivers, dynamics, and impact of such innovation in developing economies and the constraints that apply. Contributors also document the application of the innovation system approach in developing countries as well as the build up and diffusion of technological capabilities within innovation systems Academics higher level students policy makers and practitioners involved with innovation and the economics of technical change particularly in developing countries will find this a valuable book

Advanced Introduction to National Innovation Systems Cristina Chaminade, Bengt-Åke Lundvall, Shagufta Haneef, 2018 Since its emergence in the 1980s the national innovation system NIS concept has become widely used by scholars and policymakers alike In the course of its rapid diffusion it has provoked controversy on fundamental issues Where did NIS emerge What is the theoretical core of the concept Is it actually a scientific concept or simply a buzz word How useful is it in terms of low income countries How does the national innovation system relate to economic social and environmental sustainable development Is it meaningful to study national systems in a globalizing economy What are the legitimate policy implications This book provides an in depth analysis of all these questions as well as recommending future avenues of research
