National Parks Without People The South American Experience Parques Nacionales Y Conservación Ambiental:

National Parks beyond the Nation Adrian Howkins, Jared Orsi, Mark Fiege, 2016-03-31 The idea of a national park was an American invention of historic consequences marking the beginning of a worldwide movement the U S National Park Service asserts in its 2006 Management Policies National Parks beyond the Nation brings together the work of fifteen scholars and writers to reveal the tremendous diversity of the global national park experience an experience sometimes influencing sometimes influenced by and sometimes with no reference whatever to the United States Writer and historian Wallace Stegner once called national parks America's best idea The contributors to this volume use that exceptionalist claim as a starting point for thinking about an international history of national parks They explore the historical interactions and influences intellectual political and material within and between national park systems in Canada New Zealand South Africa Indonesia Antarctica Brazil and other countries What is the role of science in the history of these preserves Of politics What purposes do they serve Conservation Education Reverence toward nature Tourist pleasure People have thought differently about national parks at different times and in different places and neat physical boundaries have been disrupted by wandering animals human movements the spread of disease and climate change Viewing parks around the world at various scales and across national frontiers these essays offer a panoptic view of the common and contrasting cultural and environmental features of national parks worldwide If national parks are as Stegner said absolutely American they are no less part of the world at large National Parks beyond the Nation tells us as much about the multifarious and changing ideas of nature and culture as about the framing of those ideas in geographic temporal and national terms National Parks Without People? Stephan Amend, Thora Amend, 1995 Nationalizing Nature Frederico Freitas, 2021-03-04 Today one quarter of all the land in Latin America is set apart for nature protection In Nationalizing Nature Frederico Freitas uncovers the crucial role played by conservation in the region's territorial development by exploring how Brazil and Argentina used national parks to nationalize borderlands In the 1930s Brazil and Argentina created some of their first national parks around the massive Iguazu Falls shared by the two countries The parks were designed as tools to attract migrants from their densely populated Atlantic seaboard to a sparsely inhabited borderland In the 1970s a change in paradigm led the military regimes in Brazil and Argentina to violently evict settlers from their national parks highlighting the complicated relationship between authoritarianism and conservation in the Southern Cone By tracking almost one hundred years of national park history in Latin America's largest countries Nationalizing Nature shows how conservation policy promoted national programs of frontier development and border control National System Planning for Protected Areas Adrian G. Davey, 1998 A system plan is the design of a total reserve system covering the full range of ecosystems and communities found in a particular country identifying the range of purposes of protected areas and the relationships among the system components i.e. individual areas protected areas and other land uses and different sectors and levels of society Highlighting key linkages with other aspects of economic development it shows how various stakeholders can interact and cooperate to support effective and sustainable management of protected areas and help to establish priorities A valuable resource for all those involved with national system planning Leaving Space for Nature Nigel Dudley,Sue Stolton,2020-03-23 This book provides the first contemporary assessment of area based conservation and its implications for nature and society Now covering 15 per cent of the land surface and a growing area of ocean the creation of protected areas is one of the fastest conscious changes in land management in history But this has come at a cost including a backlash from human rights organisations about the social impacts of protected areas At the same time a range of new types of area based conservation has emerged based on indigenous people s territories local community lands and a new designation of other effective area based conservation measures This book provides a concise overview of the status and possible futures of area based conservation With many people calling for half the earth s land surface to remain in a natural condition this book taps into the urgent debate about the feasibility of such an aim and the ways in which such land might be managed It provides a timely contribution by people who have been at the centre of the debate for the last twenty years Building on the authors large personal knowledge the book draws on global case studies where the authors have firsthand experience including Yosemite National Park USA Blue Mountains National Park Australia Bwindi National Park Uganda Chingaza National Park Colombia Ustyart Plateau Kazakhstan Snowdonia National Park Wales and many more This book is essential reading for students academics and practitioners interested in conservation and its impact on society Speaking a Common Language Kevin Bishop,2004

Economics of Deforestation Sven Wunder,2000-07-19 Tropical forests are disappearing at an unaltered pace giving way to alternative land uses This book gives an economic perspective on deforestation Following a survey of different deforestation definitions theories and empirical evidence a case study of Ecuador provides a versatile historical picture of factors affecting forest loss throughout different periods regions and ecosystems It is shown that policy and market failures alone cannot explain rapid deforestation decision makers follow a composite economic rationale in their continuous clearing of forests which can only be counteracted by concerted action Connectivity Conservation Management Graeme L. Worboys,Wendy L. Francis,Michael Lockwood,2010-02-09 In an era of climate change deforestation and massive habitat loss we can no longer rely on parks and protected areas as isolated islands of wilderness to conserve and protect vital biodiversity Increasing connections are being considered and made between protected areas and connectivity thinking has started to expand to the regional and even the continental scale to match the challenges of conserving biodiversity in the face of global environmental change This groundbreaking book is the first guide to connectivity conservation management at local regional and continental scales Written by leading conservation and protected area management specialists under the auspices of the World Commission on Protected Areas of IUCN the International Union for the Conservation of Nature this guide brings together a decade and a half of practice and covers all aspects of connectivity planning and management The book establishes a context for managing connectivity conservation and identifies large scale naturally interconnected areas as critical strategic and adaptive responses to climate change The second section presents 25 rich and varied case studies from six of the eight biogeographic realms of Earth including the Cape Floristic Region of Africa the Maloti Drakensberg Mountains the Australian Alps to Atherton Corridor and the Sacred Himalayan Landscape connectivity area featuring Mount Everest The remarkable 3200 kilometre long Yellowstone to Yukon corridor of Canada and the United States of America is described in detail The third section introduces a model for managing connectivity areas shaped by input from IUCN workshops held in 2006 and 2008 and additional research The final chapter identifies broad guidelines that need to be considered in undertaking connectivity conservation management prior to reinforcing the importance and urgency of this work This handbook is a must have for all professionals in protected area management conservation land management and resource management from the field through senior management and policy It is also an ideal reference for students and academics in geography protected area management and from across the environmental and natural sciences social sciences and landuse planning Published with Wilburforce Foundation WWF ICIMOD IUCN WCPA Australian Alps and The Nature Conservancy

Protected Area Governance and Management Graeme L. Worboys, Michael Lockwood, Ashish Kothari, Sue Feary, Ian Pulsford, 2015-04-08 Protected Area Governance and Management presents a compendium of original text case studies and examples from across the world by drawing on the literature and on the knowledge and experience of those involved in protected areas The book synthesises current knowledge and cutting edge thinking from the diverse branches of practice and learning relevant to protected area governance and management It is intended as an investment in the skills and competencies of people and consequently the effective governance and management of protected areas for which they are responsible now and into the future The global success of the protected area concept lies in its shared vision to protect natural and cultural heritage for the long term and organisations such as International Union for the Conservation of Nature are a unifying force in this regard Nonetheless protected areas are a socio political phenomenon and the ways that nations understand govern and manage them is always open to contest and debate The book aims to enlighten educate and above all to challenge readers to think deeply about protected areas their future and their past as well as their present The book has been compiled by 169 authors and deals with all aspects of protected area governance and management It provides information to support capacity development training of protected area field officers managers in charge and executive level managers

Conservation Through Cultural Survival Stanley Stevens, 1997-04 An assessment of efforts to establish parks and protected areas based on partnerships with indigenous peoples It chronicles new conservation thinking and the establishment of indigenously inhabited protected areas provides case studies and offers guidelines models and recommendations for international action
