The National Portrait Gallery, Volume 2 National Portrait Gallery (Great Britain, 2016-04-27) This work has been selected by scholars as being culturally important and is part of the knowledge base of civilization as we know it. This work was reproduced from the original artifact and remains as true to the original work as possible. Therefore you will see the original copyright references, library stamps as most of these works have been housed in our most important libraries around the world and other notations in the work. This work is in the public domain in the United States of America and possibly other nations. Within the United States you may freely copy and distribute this work as no entity individual or corporate has a copyright on the body of the work. As a reproduction of a historical artifact, this work may contain missing or blurred pages, poor pictures, errant marks, etc. Scholars believe and we concur that this work is important enough to be preserved, reproduced, and made generally available to the public. We appreciate your support of the preservation process and thank you for being an important part of keeping this knowledge alive and relevant.

The National Portrait Gallery, Vol. 1 (Classic Reprint) Lionel Cust, 2019-01-20. Excerpt from The National Portrait Gallery Vol 1. The Illustrated Catalogue of the National Portrait Gallery may be considered as a fitting sequel to the Illustrated Catalogue of the National Gallery published by Messrs Cassell and Company in 1899. The National Portrait Gallery was founded in 1856 and was at first housed in temporary premises at 29 Great George Street Westminster. In 1869 the collection was removed to the eastern portion of the Long Building at South Kensington where it remained until the autumn of 1885 when, owing to increased danger from fire, the collection was transferred on temporary loan to the Science and Art Department at the Bethnal Green Museum. Although this was intended to be but a temporary measure, no steps were taken to provide this interesting collection with a permanent home or seemed at all likely to be taken until May 1889 when William Henry Alexander Esq of Shipton Andover Hants generously offered to build a National Portrait Gallery at his own expense. This offer having been accepted by Her Majesty's Government, a site was allotted in St Martin's Place in the rear of the National Gallery and the new building commenced in October 1890. The new Gallery was completed in April 1895. Mr Alexander contributing to its cost and Her Majesty's Government. The collection was then moved into the new building and the Gallery opened to the public on Saturday April 4th 1896. Out Where the West Begins, Volume 2 Philip F. Anschutz, 2017-12-15 In 1790 it was not a given that the young United States bruised and healing from its struggle for independence and populated by fewer than 4 million inhabitants would even survive much less flourish But the great adventure that came next the exploration and settlement of the lands lying to the west and stretching to the Pacific Ocean would build a nation where only a patchwork of eastern seaboard colonies had existed before The first book in this series Out Where the West Begins Profiles Visions Strategies of Early Western Business Leaders profiled fifty individuals who made significant contributions to the economic development of a young nation This second volume follows the saga of more than one hundred influential men and women political and military leaders religious thinkers civil rights proponents suffragettes African American pioneers writers and artists explorers and surveyors architects inventors innovators medical professionals and conservationists who together wove the story of early western frontier America The engaging account of their lives forms a unique tapestry of human experience In the words of the author Understanding our distinctive past helps us better comprehend who we are now and who we wish to become
