

The background of the entire image is a blurred South African flag, showing its characteristic horizontal stripes of red, white, green, and blue. Overlaid on this is a close-up of a hand. The hand's skin is painted with the colors of the South African flag: green on the fingers and thumb, yellow on the palm and wrist, and a red band around the base of the thumb. The hand is holding a small, dark, cylindrical object between the thumb and index finger.

Saint, 2018-09-20 Under apartheid black South Africans experienced severe material and social disadvantages occasioned by the government's policies and they had limited time for entertainment Still they closely engaged with an array of textual and visual cultures in ways that shaped their responses to this period of ethical crisis Marshaling forms of historical evidence that include passbooks memoirs American B movies literary and genre fiction magazines and photocomics Black Cultural Life in South Africa considers the importance of popular genres and audiences in the relationship between ethical consciousness and aesthetic engagement This study provocatively posits that states of oppression including colonial and postcolonial rule can elicit ethical responses to imaginative identification through encounters with popular culture and it asks whether and how they carry over into ethical action Its consideration of how globalized popular culture travels not just in material form but also through the circuits of the imaginary opens a new window for exploring the ethical and liberatory stakes of popular culture Each chapter focuses on a separate genre yet the overall interdisciplinary approach to the study of genre and argument for an expansion of ethical theory that draws on texts beyond the Western canon speak to growing concerns about studying genres and disciplines in isolation Freed from oversimplified treatments of popular forms common to cultural studies and ethical theory alike this book demonstrates that people can do things with mass culture that reinvigorate ethical life Lily Saint's new volume will interest Africanists across the humanities and the social sciences and scholars of Anglophone literary globalization and cultural studies race ethical theories and philosophies film studies book history and material cultures and the burgeoning field of comics and graphic novels Sol Plaatje's Native Life in South Africa Janet

Remington, Brian Willan, Bhekizizwe Peterson, 2016-10-01 Sheds new light on Native Life appearing at a critical historical juncture and reflects on how to read it in South Africa's heightened challenges today First published in 1916 Sol Plaatje's Native Life in South Africa was written by one of the South Africa's most talented early twentieth century black leaders and journalists Plaatje's pioneering book arose out of an early African National Congress campaign to protest against the discriminatory 1913 Natives Land Act. Native Life vividly narrates Plaatje's investigative journeying into South Africa's rural heartlands to report on the effects of the Act and his involvement in the deputation to the British imperial government. At the same time it tells the bigger story of the assault on black rights and opportunities in the newly consolidated Union of South Africa and the resistance to it. Originally published in war time London but about South Africa and its place in the world, Native Life travelled far and wide being distributed in the United States under the auspices of prominent African American W. E. B. Du Bois. South African editions were to follow only in the late apartheid period and beyond. The aim of this multi-authored volume is to shed new light on how and why Native Life came into being at a critical historical juncture and to reflect on how it can be read in relation to South Africa's heightened challenges today. Crucial areas that come under the spotlight in this collection include land, race, history, mobility, belonging, war, the press, law, literature, language, gender, politics and the state.

The ISA Handbook of Diverse Sociological Traditions Sujata Patel, 2010. This latest edition to the ISA handbook series actively engages with the many traditions of sociology in the world. Twenty-nine chapters from prominent international contributors discuss, challenge and re-conceptualize the global discipline of sociology, evaluating the diversities within and between sociological traditions of many regions and nation states. They assess all aspects of the discipline: ideas and theories, scholars and scholarship practices and traditions, ruptures and continuities through an international perspective. Its goal is to become a text for debating the contours of international sociology.

Language Learning, Power, Race and Identity Liz Johanson Botha, 2015-07-02. This book investigates the strategies and identities of colonials who have learned the languages of colonised people using the context of isiXhosa in South Africa. While power in language learning research has traditionally focused on the powerful native speaker and the relatively disempowered learner, this book studies the inverse where elites are the language learners. The author analyses the life histories of four white South Africans who acquired isiXhosa during the apartheid years. The book offers insights into relationships between language, power, race, identity and change in their stories and in the broader context of apartheid and post-apartheid South Africa with its conflicted history and disparities. This book should appeal to researchers interested in studies of language acquisition, narrative and identity as well as those more broadly interested in South African history, multilingualism and race studies.
