suggests most coalitions fracture under such intense pressure In the end she argues member nations summoned the political will and organizational capacity to cooperate and endure And they agreed above all that failure in Afghanistan would be catastrophic both for NATO and for the world

Davis, Wolfgang Dietrich, Bettina Scholdan, 2017-07-28 International intervention on humanitarian grounds has been a contentious issue for decades First it pits the principle of state sovereignty against claims of universal human rights Second the motivations of intervening states may be open to question when avowals of moral action are arguably the fig leaf covering an assertion of power for political advantage These questions have been salient in the context of the Balkan and African wars and U S policy in the Middle East This volume undertakes a serious systematic and broadly international review of the issues
