New Directions in Agrarian Political Economy Ryan Isakson, 2017-10-02 How relevant are the classic theories of agrarian change in the contemporary context This volume explores this question by focusing upon the defining features of agrarian transformation in the 21st century the financialization of food and agriculture the blurring of rural and urban livelihoods through migration and other economic activities forest transition climate change rural indebtedness the co evolution of social policy and moral economies and changing property relations Combined the eleven contributions to this collection provide a broad overview of agrarian studies over the past four decades and identify the contemporary frontiers of agrarian political economy In this path breaking collection the authors show how new iterations of long evident processes continue to catch peasants and smallholders in the crosshairs of crises and how many manage to face these challenges developing new sources and sites of livelihood production This volume was published as part one of the special double issue celebrating the 40th anniversary of the Journal of Peasant Studies

Agri-food Chain Relationships

Christian Fischer, Monika Hartmann, 2010 Against the background of global market liberalization increasing consumer awareness and concerns and the spreading of complex technology new ways to produce distribute and consume food are evolving The organization of agricultural production and distribution systems need to adapt including the development and maintenance of sustainable business relationships between farmers food processors and grocery retailers While agricultural value chains have been promoted for decades more attention is needed on how to enable economic agents to develop lasting relationships and trust within value chains Using qualitative and quantitative empirical results Agri food Chain Relationships offers an insight into the sustainability of current agribusiness relationships and discusses how these may be improved Theoretical foundations for analysing agri food chain relations are considered alongside case studies of different countries food chains and chain stages regarding the issues of sustainable relationships and trust

Environment and Food

Colin Sage, 2011-07-07 This timely book provides a thorough introduction to the inter relationship of food and the environment Its primary purpose is to bring to our attention the multiplicity of linkages and interconnections between what we eat and how this impacts on the earth's resources. Having a better idea of the consequences of our food choices might encourage us to develop more sustainable practices of production and consumption in the decades ahead. Although human societies have over time brought under control a large proportion of the earth's resources for the purpose of food production, we remain subject to the effective functioning of global ecosystem services. The author highlights the vital importance of these services and explains why we should be concerned about the depletion of freshwater resources, soil fertility decline, and loss of biological diversity. The book also tackles some of the enormous challenges of our era: climate change to which the agri-food system is both a major contributor and a vulnerable sector, and the prospect of significantly higher energy prices arising from the peaking of oil and gas supplies, which will reveal how dependent the food system has become upon cheap fossil fuels. Such challenges are likely to have significant implications for the long-term functioning of global supply chains and raise profound questions regarding the nutritional security of the world's population. Taken together, the book argues that a re-examination of the assumptions and practices underpinning the contemporary food system is urgently required. Environment and Food is a highly original, interdisciplinary, and accessible text that will be of interest to students and the wider public genuinely interested in and concerned by the state of the world's food provisioning system. It is richly illustrated with figures and makes extensive use of boxes to highlight relevant examples.

Global Problems, Smart Solutions Bjørn Lomborg, 2013-11-14

A high-profile thought experiment asks leading scholars to make cases for spending additional aid money to combat major world problems. Horticulture and Livelihood Security P. Nath, P.B. A Place-Based Perspective of Food in Society Kevin M. Fitzpatrick, Don Willis, 2015-08-18. This book provides an outstanding collection of interdisciplinary and international essays examining the food-place relationship. It explores such topics as the history of food and agriculture, the globalization and localization of food, and the role of place in defining the broader societal consequences of this ever-changing phenomena.

Innovation

Strategies in the Food Industry Charis M. Galanakis, 2021-10-21. Innovation Strategies for the Food Industry Tools for Implementation Second Edition explores how process technologies and innovations are implemented in the food industry by identifying problems and providing answers to questions of modern applications. As in all science sectors, Internet and big data have brought a renaissance of changes in the way academics and researchers communicate and collaborate and in the way that the food industry develops. The new edition covers emerging skills of food technologists and the integration of food science and technology knowledge into the food chain. This handbook is ideal for all relevant actors in the food sector: professors, researchers, students, and professionals, as well as for anyone dealing with food science and technology, new products development, and food industry. Includes the latest trend on training requirements for the agro food industry. Highlights new technical skills and profiles of modern food scientists and technologists for professional development. Presents new case studies to support research activities in the food sector including product and process innovation. Covers topics on collaboration, entrepreneurship, Big Data, and the Internet of Things.

Sustainable Culinary Systems Colin Michael Hall, Stefan Gössling, 2013. This is the first volume to examine the concept of sustainable culinary systems, particularly with specific reference to tourism and hospitality. Divided into two parts: firstly, the notion of the local is explored, reflecting the increased interest in the championing of local food production and consumption. Secondly, treatment of sustainability in food and food tourism and hospitality in settings that reach beyond the local in a business and socio-economic sense is reviewed. The book therefore reflects much of the contemporary public interest in the conscious or ethical consumption and production of food, as well as revealing the inherent tensions between local and broader goals in both defining and achieving sustainable culinary systems and the environmental, social, and economic implications of food production and consumption.

Growing Local Robert P. King, Michael Stephen Hand, Miguel I. Gómez, 2014. In an increasingly commercialized world, the demand for better quality, healthier food has given rise to one of the fastest growing segments of the U.S. food system: locally grown food. Many believe that relocalization of the food system will provide a range of public benefits, including lower carbon emissions, increased local economic activity, and closer connections between consumers, farmers, and communities. The structure of local food supply chains, however, may not always be capable of generating these perceived benefits. Growing Local reports the findings from a coordinated series of case studies designed to develop a deeper, more nuanced understanding of how local food products reach consumers and how local food supply chains compare with mainstream supermarket supply chains. To better understand how local food reaches the point of sale, Growing Local uses case study methods to rigorously compare local and mainstream supply chains for five products in five metropolitan areas along multiple social, economic, and environmental dimensions, highlighting areas of growth and potential barriers. Growing Local provides a foundation for a better understanding of the characteristics of local food production and emphasizes the realities of operating local food supply chains.

Healthy and Sustainable Food Systems Mark Lawrence, Sharon Friel, 2019-10-18. This comprehensive text provides the latest research on key concepts, principles, and practices for promoting healthy and sustainable food systems.

There are increasing concerns about the impact of food systems on environmental sustainability and in turn the impact of environmental sustainability on the capacity of food systems to protect food and nutrition security into the future. The contributors to this book are leading researchers in the causes of and solutions to these challenges. As international experts in their fields they provide in depth analyses of the issues and evidence informed recommendations for future policies and practices. Starting with an overview of ideas about health sustainability and equity in relation to food systems, Healthy and Sustainable Food Systems examines what constitutes a food system with chapters on production, manufacturing, distribution and retail among others. The text explores health and sustainable diets looking at issues such as overconsumption and waste. The book ends with discussions about the politics, policy, personal behaviours and advocacy behind creating healthy and sustainable food systems. With a food systems approach to health and sustainability identified as a priority area for public health, this text introduces core knowledge for students, academics, practitioners and policy makers from a range of disciplines including food and nutrition sciences, dietetics, public health, public policy, medicine, health science and environmental science.

Food Policy Tim Lang, David Barling, Martin Caraher, 2009-03-19. For over half a century food policy has mapped a path for progress based upon a belief that the right mix of investment, scientific input and human skills could unleash a surge in productive capacity which would resolve humanity's food related health and welfare problems. It assumed that more food would yield greater health and happiness by driving down prices, increasing availability and feeding more mouths. In the 21st century this policy mix is quietly becoming unstuck. In a world marred by obesity alongside malnutrition, climate change alongside fuel and energy crises, water stress alongside more mouths to feed and social inequalities alongside unprecedented accumulation of wealth, the old rubric of food policy needs re-evaluation. This book explores the enormity of what the new policy mix must address, taking the approach that food policy must be inextricably linked with public health, environmental damage and social inequalities to be effective. Written by three authors with differing backgrounds, one in political science, another in environmental health and health promotion and the third in social psychology, this book reflects the myriad of perspectives essential to a comprehensive view of modern food policy. It attempts to make sense of what is meant by food policy, explores whether the term has any currency in current policy discourse, assesses whether current policies help or hinder what happens, judges whether consensus can triumph in the face of competing bids for understanding, looks at all levels of governance across the range of actors in the food system from companies and the state to civil society and science, considers what direction food policies are taking, not just in the UK but internationally, assesses who and what gains or loses in the making of these food policies and identifies a modern framework for judging how good or limited processes of policy making are. This book provides a major comprehensive review of current and past food policy thinking and proposing the need for what the authors call an ecological public health approach to food policy. Nothing less will be fit for the 21st century.

The End of Food Paul Roberts, 2008. The bestselling author of The End of Oil turns his attention to food and finds that the system entrusted with meeting one of the most basic needs is dramatically failing us With his trademark comprehensive global approach Roberts investigates the startling truth about the modern food system      East Asia and Food

(In)Security Shaun Breslin, Christopher W. Hughes, 2017-10-02 This book presents a study of perceptions of food insecurity in East Asia and explores how individual countries are developing strategies to deal with the situation It also looks at how the perception of food insecurity has increasingly influenced the nature of international interactions not just within East Asia but also in the region's relations with major external actors Many of the challenges facing East Asia are generic food security issues that face people and governments across the world for example the implications of climate change and demographic changes on food supplies This book places the East Asian context in the wider discussion of food in security in global politics However it also identifies potential regional differences for example the significance of rice for the region and the unavoidable impact of China as a major regional player What the Chinese state and Chinese companies decide to do in response to concerns about food insecurity have an impact not just on the rest of the region but on the rest of the world Taking too much of a Sinocentric focus however ignores other actors in East Asia or merely relegates discussion to how they respond to Chinese policies or external strategies This book considers the region as a whole both when it comes to thinking about food security challenges and responses within the region itself and also in the outward projection of regional food insecurity on the rest of the world This book was published as a special issue of The Pacific Review      Looking east looking west Bill Slee, Chen Tong, Bundit Anurugsa, Rainer Haas, Maurizio Canavari, 2023-09-04 This book represents a unique collection of European and Asian perspectives on the production trade and consumption of high quality food The rapidly growing demand for organic and quality food in Europe imposes new challenges on competing food value chains Europe as the biggest worldwide food importer attracts many developing and developed countries in Asia Prospering Chinese and Thai food markets offer new opportunities for European operators Wealthy and informed consumers on both continents search for trustworthy high quality food products Farmers operators and retailers from distant cultures are coping with different standards facing the ever increasing necessity for mutual understanding This publication is the output of Bean Quorum a European funded Asia Link project Bean Quorum represents a consolidated network of researchers working together with the business sector and NGOs to enhance European Asian understanding about organic and quality food This book describes global trends in organic and quality food trade and connects them with recent developments in Asian and European market structures Selected case studies illustrate the impact of organic and quality food production on topics ranging from sustainable rural development to the potential of exotic new plant varieties to purchase decisions of European or Asian retail managers Selected European markets are mirrored by the situation in Chinese and Thai markets Finally environmental issues concerning global trade of quality food are addressed      Handbook of Sustainability Science and Research

Walter Leal Filho, 2017-10-03 This multidisciplinary handbook explores concrete case studies which illustrate how
