The Wilderness, the Nation, and the Electronic Era Elmer J. O'Brien, 2009-07-29. The Wilderness, the Nation and the Electronic Era: American Christianity and Religious Communication 1620-2000. An Annotated Bibliography contains over 2,400 annotations of books, book chapters, essays, periodical articles and selected dissertations dealing with the various means and technologies of Christian communication used by clergy, churches, denominations, benevolent associations, printers, booksellers, publishing houses and individuals and movements in their efforts to disseminate news, knowledge and information about religious beliefs and life in the United States from colonial times to the present. Providing access to the critical and interpretive literature about religious communication is significant and plays a central role in the recent trend in American historiography toward cultural history, particularly as it relates to numerous collateral disciplines: sociology, anthropology, education, speech, music, literary studies, art history and technology. The book documents communication shifts from oral history to print to electronic and visual media and their adaptive uses in communication networks developed over the nation's history. This reference brings bibliographic control to a large and diverse literature not previously identified or indexed.

Types and stereotypes is the fourth and last volume of a path breaking multinational literary history that incorporates innovative features relevant to the writing of literary history in general.
