Francesch-Huidobro,2008-07-09 In the past two decades research on environmental issues in East and Southeast Asian countries has mainly focused on existing institutional mechanisms of environmental management the establishment of new environmental management structures the introduction of incentives to improve natural capital and foster environmental protection and the culture of environmental or green groups Virtually no rigorous research has been directed into the nature and significance of the existing relationship between government and civil society in individual country studies with specific reference to the environmental policy sector or into how this relationship may be evolving This book explores this connection in Singapore and what causes it to evolve through three case narratives Its rationale is to address this gap in the literature from a governance theory perspective that focuses on state adaptation to the external environment and new forms of coordination and collaboration between government and civil society to tackle new societal problems The application of the governance theory approach to specific case studies is itself a topic that deserves much greater study than what it has so far received

Beyond Nudge Benjamin Ewert,Kathrin Loer,Eva Thomann,2023-12-15 In recent years a wave of reforms known as nudges or behavioural interventions have emerged in public policy and administration Nudge policies are created to lightly influence groups in society to change their behaviour using behavioural insights to solve complex policy problems Generally behavioural approaches focus on the psychology underlying the implementation and effects of policies in practice First published as a special issue of Policy Politics journal this book situates these reforms within a broader tradition of methodological individualism With contributions from international scholars it demonstrates that when behavioural policies expand their focus beyond the individual they have the potential to better understand investigate and shape social outcomes
