Politics Of Representation:

The Politics of Presence Anne Phillips, 1995-10-05 Provides a ground breaking contribution to the widespread and controversial debate about how disadvantaged groups should be represented in politics One of the most hotly debated debates in contemporary democracy revolves around issues of political presence and whether the fair representation of disadvantage groups requires their presence in elected assemblies Representation as currently understood derives its legitimacy from a politics of ideas which considers accountability in relation to declared policies and programmes and makes it a matter of relative indifference who articulates political preferences or beliefs What happens to the meaning of representation and accountability when we make the gender or ethnic composition of elected assemblies an additional area of concern In this innovative contribution to the theory of representation which draws on debates about gender quotas in Europe minority voting rights in the USA and the multi layered politics of inclusion in Canada Anne Phillips argues that the politics of ideas is an inadequate vehicle for dealing with political exclusion But eschewing any essentialist grounding the group identity or group interest she also argues against any either or choice between ideas and political presence The politics of presence then combines with contemporary explorations of deliberative democracy to establish a different balance between accountability and autonomy

Creating Political Presence Dario Castiglione, Johannes Pollak, 2018-12-28 For at least two centuries democratic representation has been at the center of debate Should elected representatives express the views of the majority or do they have the discretion to interpret their constituents interests How can representatives balance the desires of their parties and their electors What should be done to strengthen the representation of groups that have been excluded from the political system Representative democracy itself remains frequently contested regarded as incapable of reflecting the will of the masses or inadequate for today s global governance Recently however this view of democratic representation has been under attack for its failure to capture the performative and constructive elements of the process of representation and a new literature more attentive to these aspects of the relationship between representatives and the represented has arisen In Creating Political Presence a diverse and international group of scholars explores the implications of such a turn Two broad overlapping perspectives emerge In the first section the contributions investigate how political representation relates to empowerment either facilitating or interfering with the capacity of citizens to develop autonomous judgment in collective decision making Contributions in the second section look at representation from the perspective of inclusion focusing on how representative relationships and claims articulate the demands of those who are excluded or have no voice The final section examines political representation from a more systemic perspective exploring its broader environmental conditions and the way it acquires democratic legitimacy
