Politics For Human Beings:

Human Beings in International Relations Daniel Jacobi, Annette Freyberg-Inan, 2015-09-11 Since the 1980s the discipline of International Relations has seen a series of disputes over its foundations. However, there has been one core concept that although addressed in various guises had never been explicitly and systematically engaged with in these debates: the human. This volume is the first to address comprehensively the topic of the human in world politics. It comprises cutting edge accounts by leading scholars of how the human is or is not theorized across the entire range of IR theories old and new. The authors provide a solid foundation for future debates about how, why, and to which ends the human has been or must not be built into our theories and systematically lay out the implications of such moves for how we come to see world politics and humanity's role within it.

Cosmopolitan Global Politics Patrick Hayden, 2017-05-15 Cosmopolitan conceptions of justice in global politics are gaining in importance in the field of international political theory. Cosmopolitanism claims that we owe duties of justice to all the persons of the world and thus that normative theories of global politics should focus first on the interests or welfare of persons rather than of states. Providing a thorough analysis of relevant literature and covering issues such as war and conflict, peace and human security, accountability for gross violations of human rights, environmental degradation, and the democratic deficit in transnational political actions and institutions, Patrick Hayden deftly examines the connections between accounts of cosmopolitanism and the part they play in contemporary global politics. He identifies competing theories of cosmopolitanism and defends them as strategies for serving the aims of justice in world affairs. Furthermore, he explores how cosmopolitan theories can function positively in processes of shaping international norms.

Sin and Politics Jeong Kii Min, 2009 Sin and Politics Issues in Reformed Theology is an overview of the relationship between sin and politics from the reformational point of view. This short theological history is comprised of three parts: politics without sin, creational politics, politics with sin, fallen politics, and politics beyond sin, redeemed politics. As a creation of human culture, politics has been tainted with sinful distortion in this world but will be recovered in the future Kingdom by the eternal kingship of the Lord of Lords. Sin and Politics includes a summary and commentary on political discussions by various Reformed theologians. It uncovers the Reformed tradition's positive regard for politics and the profound theological root of politics.
