Easterday, Jens Iverson, 2017 This book examines the protection of the environment in post conflict societies with regard both to the maintenance of natural ecosystems and to the function of environmental protection in the peace building process addressing the strengths and weaknesses of different bodies of law

Environmental Policy Analysis and Practice Michael R Greenberg, 2008-03-13 Pressing environmental challenges are frequently surrounded with stakeholders on all sides of the issues Opinions expressed by government agencies the private sector special interests nonprofit communities and the media among others can quickly cloud the dialogue leaving one to wonder how policy decisions actually come about In Environmental Policy Analysis and Practice Michael R Greenberg cuts through the complicated layers of bureaucracy science and the public interest to show how all policy considerations can be broken down according to six specific factors 1 the reaction of elected government officials 2 the reactions of the public and special interests 3 knowledge developed by scientists and engineers 4 economics 5 ethical imperatives and 6 time pressure to make a decision The book is organized into two parts with the first part defining and illustrating each one of these criteria Greenberg draws on examples such as nuclear power pesticides brownfield redevelopment gasoline additives and environmental cancer but focuses on how these subjects can be analyzed rather than exclusively on the issues themselves Part two goes on to describe a set of over twenty tools that are used widely in policy analysis including risk assessment environmental impact analysis public opinion surveys cost benefit analysis and others These tools are described and then illustrated with examples from part one Weaving together an impressive combination of practical advice and engaging first person accounts from government officials administrators and leaders in the fields of public health and medicine this clearly written volume is poised to become a leading text in environmental policy

Environmental Justice and Sustainability in the Former Soviet Union Julian Agyeman, Yelena Ogneva-Himmelberger, 2009 An examination of the awareness of environmental and social justice issues in the former Soviet republics from the Western style democracies of the Baltic region to the totalitarian regimes of Central Asia and the resulting activism in those states The legacy of environmental catastrophe in the states of the former Soviet Union includes desertification pollution and the toxic aftermath of industrial accidents the most notorious of which was the Chernobyl disaster of 1986 This book examines the development of environmental activism in Russia and the former Soviet republics in response to these problems and its effect on policy and planning It also shows that because of increasing economic ethnic and social inequality in the former Soviet states debates over environmental justice are beginning to come to the fore The book explores the varying environmental social political and economic circumstances of these countries which range from the Western style democracies of the Baltic states to the totalitarian regimes of Central Asia and how they affect the ecological environmental and public health Among the topics covered are environmentalism in Russia including the progressive nature of its laws on environmental protection which are undermined by overburdened and underpaid law enforcement the effect of oil wealth on Azerbaijan and Kazakhstan the role of nationalism in Latvian environmentalism the struggle of Russia's indigenous peoples for environmental justice public participation in Estonia's environmental movement and lack of access to natural capital in Tajikistan Environmental Justice and Sustainability in the Former Soviet Union makes clear that although fragile transition economies varying degrees of democratization and a focus on national security can stymie progress toward just sustainability the diverse states of the former Soviet Union are making some progress toward green and environmental justice issues separately Philosophy and Science of Risk Isabelle Peschard, Yann

Benétreau-Dupin, Christopher Wessels, 2022-11-15 What is risk How do we assess risk What are the ethical implications of risk The concept of risk is important sometimes even crucial for many philosophical domains from philosophy of science and technology to ethics and sustainability Philosophy and Science of Risk is a clear wide ranging introduction to this urgent and fast growing subject It covers the following key topics The philosophical and historical background to understanding and interpreting risk The meaning of risk and how it differs from closely related concepts such as uncertainty or dangers The social construction of risk Risk perception and risk as an object of scientific study The measurement of risk its probability and severity Risk and scientific modeling Risk value judgments and expertise Risk management including cost benefit analysis and the precautionary approach Risk communication including deliberative models Ethics of risk including duties toward nonhuman animals and future generations Risk and sustainability Decision making under risk Including helpful additional features such as text boxes chapter summaries review and discussion questions Philosophy and Science of Risk An Introduction is an ideal textbook for students of the philosophy of risk It is also suitable for students studying the conceptual questions surrounding risk in related subjects such as sociology psychology economics politics geography sustainability and environmental studies

Genetically Engineered Crops Iain Taylor, 2007-03-08 Take a closer look at the questions surrounding the long term impact of GE crops Genetically Engineered Crops examines current controversies surrounding the potential health environmental and social impacts of plants produced using molecular biology techniques Educators professionals and practitioners representing a wide range of disciplines. Environmental Inequalities Beyond Borders Joann Carmin, Julian Agyeman, 2011-04-04 Case studies demonstrate the spatial disconnect between global consumption and production and its effects on local environmental quality and human rights. Multinational corporations often exploit natural resources or locate factories in poor countries far from the demand for the products and profits that result. Developed countries also routinely dump hazardous materials and produce greenhouse gas emissions that have a disproportionate impact on developing countries. This book investigates how these and other globalized practices exact high social and environmental costs as poor local communities are forced to cope with depleted resources, pollution, health problems, and social and cultural disruption. Case studies drawn from Africa, Asia, the Pacific Rim, and Latin America critically assess how diverse types of global inequalities play out on local terrains. These range from an assessment of the pros and cons of foreign investment in Fiji to an account of the work of transnational activists combating toxic waste disposal in Mozambique. Taken together, the chapters demonstrate the spatial disconnect between global consumption and production on the one hand and local environmental quality and human rights on the other. The result is a rich perspective not only on the ways industries, governments, and consumption patterns may further entrench existing inequalities but also on how emerging networks and movements can foster institutional change and promote social equality and environmental justice. Technoscience and Environmental Justice Gwen Ottinger, Benjamin R. Cohen, 2011 Case studies exploring how experts encounter environmental justice are changing technical and scientific practice. Environmental Justice in Latin America David V. Carruthers, 2008 Scholars and activists investigate the emergence of a distinctively Latin American environmental justice movement, offering analysis and case studies that illustrate the connections between popular environmental mobilization and social justice in the region. Health Technologies and International Intellectual Property Law Phoebe Li, 2013-12-17 The global transmission of infectious diseases has fuelled the need for a more developed legal framework in international public health to provide prompt and specific guidance during a large scale emergency. This book develops a means for States to take advantage of the flexibilities of compulsory licensing in the Agreement on Trade-Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights (TRIPS) which promotes access to medicines in a public health emergency. It presents the precautionary approach (PA) and the structure of risk analysis as a means to build a workable reading of TRIPS and to help States embody the flexibilities of intellectual property (IP). The work investigates the complementary roles of the World Health Organization (WHO) and the World Trade Organization (WTO) in order to promote the harmonisation of the precautionary approach in relation to the patenting of crucial pharmaceutical products. By bringing together international trade law and intellectual property law, Phoebe Li demonstrates how, through the use of risk analysis and the precautionary approach, States can still comply with their legal obligations in international law while exercising their sovereignty right in issuing a compulsory licence of a drug patent in an uncertain public health emergency. This book will be of great interest to students and academics of medical and Sustainability Kent E. Portney, 2015-10-09 A concise and accessible examination of sustainability in a range of contemporary contexts from economic development to government policy The word sustainability has been connected to everything from a certain kind of economic development to corporate promises about improved supply sourcing But despite the apparent ubiquity of the term the concept of sustainability has come to mean a number of specific things In this accessible guide to the meanings of sustainability Kent Portney describes the evolution of the idea and examines its application in a variety of contemporary contexts from economic growth and consumption to government policy and urban planning Portney takes as his starting point the 1987 definition by the World Commission on Environment and Development of sustainability as economic development activity that meets the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs At its heart Portney explains sustainability focuses on the use and depletion of natural resources It is not the same as environmental protection or natural resource conservation it is more about finding some sort of steady state so that the earth can support both human population and economic growth Portney looks at political opposition to the promotion of sustainability which usually questions the need for sustainability or calls its costs unacceptable collective and individual consumption of material goods and resources and to what extent they must be curtailed to achieve sustainability the role of the private sector and the co-opting of sustainability by corporations government policy on sustainability at the international national and subnational levels and how cities could become models for sustainability action

Encyclopedia of Social Work, 1965 Pastoral Capitalism Louise A. Mozingo, 2011-09-16 How business appropriated the pastoral landscape as seen in the corporate campus the corporate estate and the office park By the end of the twentieth century America's suburbs contained more office space than its central cities Many of these corporate workplaces were surrounded somewhat incongruously by verdant vistas of broad lawns and leafy trees In Pastoral Capitalism Louise Mzingo describes the evolution of these central but often ignored features of postwar urbanism in the context of the modern capitalist enterprise These new suburban corporate landscapes emerged from a historical moment when corporations reconceived their management structures the city decentralized and dispersed into low density auto dependent peripheries and the pastoral in the form of leafy residential suburbs triumphed as an American ideal Greenness writes Mzingo was associated with goodness and pastoral capitalism appropriated the suburb's aesthetics and moral code Like the lawn proud suburban homeowner corporations understood a pastoral landscape's capacity to communicate identity status and right mindedness Mzingo distinguishes among three forms of corporate landscapes the corporate campus the corporate estate and the office park and examines suburban corporate landscapes built and inhabited by such companies as Bell Labs General Motors Deere Company and Microsoft She also considers the globalization of pastoral capitalism in Europe and the developing world including Singapore India and China Mzingo argues that even as it is proliferating pastoral capitalism needs redesign as do many of our metropolitan forms for pressing social cultural political and environmental reasons Future transformations are impossible however unless we understand the past Pastoral Capitalism offers an indispensable chapter in urban history examining not only the design of corporate landscapes but also the economic social and cultural models that determined their form

Sequel to Suburbia Nicholas A. Phelps, 2015-12-09

How the decentralized automobile oriented and fuel consuming model of American suburban development might change In the years after World War II a distinctly American model for suburban development emerged The expansive rings of outer suburbs that formed around major cities were decentralized and automobile oriented an embodiment of America's postwar mass production mass consumption economy But alternate models for suburbia including transit oriented development smart growth and New Urbanism have inspired critiques of suburbanization and experiments in post suburban ways of living In Sequel to Suburbia Nicholas Phelps considers the possible post suburban future offering historical and theoretical context as well as case studies of transforming communities Phelps first locates these outer suburban rings within wider metropolitan spaces describes the suburbs as a spatial fix for the postwar capitalist economy and examines the political and governmental obstacles to reworking suburban space He then presents three glimpses of post suburban America looking at Kendall Dadeland in Miami Dade County Florida Tysons Corner in Fairfax County Virginia and Schaumburg Illinois near Chicago He shows Kendall Dadeland to be an isolated New Urbanism success describes the re planning of Tysons Corner to include a retrofitted central downtown area and examines Schaumburg's position as a regional capital for Chicago's northwest suburbs As these cases show the reworking of suburban space and the accompanying political process will not be left to a small group of architects planners and politicians Post suburban politics will have to command the approval of the residents of suburbia
