Luke's Christology of Divine Identity Nina Henrichs-Tarasenkova, 2015-11-19

Henrichs Tarasenkova argues against a long tradition of scholars about how best to represent Luke's Christology. When read against the backdrop of ancient ways of constructing personal identity, key texts in the Lukan narrative demonstrate that Luke indirectly characterizes Jesus as the one God of Israel together with YHWH. Henrichs Tarasenkova employs a narrative approach that takes into consideration recent studies of narrative and history and enables her to construct characters of YHWH and Jesus within the Lukan narrative. She employs Richard Bauckham's concept of divine identity that she evaluates against her study of how one might speak of personal identity in the Greco-Roman world. She engages in close reading of key texts to demonstrate how Luke speaks of YHWH as God in order to demonstrate that Luke's Acts upholds a traditional Jewish view that only the God of Israel is the one living God and to eliminate false expectations for how Luke should speak of Jesus as God. This analysis establishes how Luke binds Jesus' identity to the divine identity of YHWH and concludes that the Lukan narrative in fact does portray Jesus as God when it shows that Jesus shares YHWH's divine identity.

Narration, Identity, and Historical Consciousness Jürgen Straub, 2006-01-01

A generally acknowledged characteristic of modern life, namely the temporalization of experience, is inextricable from our intensified experience of contingency and difference. It has until now remained largely outside psychology's purview. Wherever questions about the development, structure, and function of the concept of time have been posed—for example, by Piaget and other founders of genetic structuralism—they have been concerned predominantly with concepts of physical, chronometrical time and related concepts, e.g., velocity. All the contributions to the present volume attempt to close this gap. A larger number are especially interested in the narration of stories. Overviews of the relevant literature as well as empirical case studies appear alongside theoretical and methodological reflections. Most contributions refer to specifically historical phenomena and meaning constructions. Some touch on the subjects of biographical memory and biographical constructions of reality. Of all the various affinities between the contributions collected here, the most important is their consistent attention to issues of the constitution and representation of temporal experience.
