Recent History:

Doing Recent History Claire Bond Potter, Renee C. Romano, 2012-04-25 Recent history the very phrase seems like an oxymoron Yet historians have been writing accounts of the recent past since printed history acquired a modern audience and in the last several years interest in recent topics has grown exponentially With subjects as diverse as Walmart and disco and personalities as disparate as Chavez and Schlafly books about the history of our own time have become arguably the most exciting and talked about part of the discipline Despite this rich tradition and growing popularity historians have engaged in little discussion about the specific methodological political and ethical issues related to writing about the recent past The twelve essays in this collection explore the challenges of writing histories of recent events where visibility is inherently imperfect hindsight and perspective are lacking and historiography is underdeveloped Those who write about events that have taken place since 1970 encounter exciting challenges that are both familiar and foreign to scholars of a more distant past including suspicions that their research is not historical enough negotiation with living witnesses who have a very strong stake in their own representation and the task of working with new electronic sources Contributors to this collection consider a wide range of these challenges They question how sources like television and video games can be better utilized in historical research explore the role and regulation of doing oral histories consider the ethics of writing about living subjects discuss how historians can best navigate questions of privacy and copyright law and imagine the possibilities that new technologies offer for creating transnational and translingual research opportunities Doing Recent History offers guidance and insight to any researcher considering tackling the not so distant past

Discursive Processes of Intergenerational Transmission of Recent History M. Achugar, 2016-04-12 Debates about how to remember politically contested or painful pasts exist throughout the world As with the case of the Holocaust in Europe and Apartheid in South Africa South American countries are struggling with the legacy of state terrorism left by the 1970s dictatorships Coming to terms with the past entails understanding the role different social actors played in those events as well as what those event mean for us today Young people in these situations have to learn about painful historical events over which there is no national consensus This book explores discursive processes of intergenerational transmission of recent history through the case of the Uruguayan dictatorship The main themes of the book are the discursive construction of social memory and intergenerational transmission of contested pasts through recontextualization resemiotization and intertextuality

Applied History and Contemporary Policymaking Robert Crowcroft, 2022-10-06 Robert Crowcroft has assembled a world class international cast of outstanding scholars and international figures to produce a stimulating collection of essays on applied history and policy making With contributors such as Philip Bobbitt Margaret MacMillan and Jeremy Black this collection of essays addresses some of the most important geopolitical challenges confronting the world today From reconstructing collapsed political regimes to security competition in the China Seas and the evolution of Salafi Jihadi ideology it explores a range of statecraft policy and strategy The essays span a number of policy areas and historical problems tackling important questions about what historians do and should do and considering the nature and limits of historical judgement With some examining how applied history can be used to rethink contemporary challenges others explore how it has been used and abused in the past Making a splash in intellectual debate by making a definitive case for Applied History this book demonstrates that a knowledge of the past and the insight it provides is imperative to effective statecraft

The Orators and Their Treatment of the Recent Past Aggelos Kapellos, 2022-12-05 This volume focuses on the representation of the recent past in classical Athenian oratory and investigates the ability of the orators to interpret it according to their interests the inability of the Athenians to make an objective assessment of it and the unwillingness of the citizens to hear the truth make self criticism and take responsibility for bad results Twenty eight scholars have written chapters to this end dealing with a wide range of themes in terms both of contents and of chronology from the fifth to the fourth century B C Each contributor has written a chapter that analyzes one or more historical events mentioned or alluded in the corpus of the Attic orators and covers the three species of Attic oratory Chapters that treat other issues collectively are also included The common feature of each contribution is an outline of the recent events that took place and influenced the citizens and or the city of Athens and its juxtaposition with their rhetorical treatment by the orators either by comparing the rhetorical texts with the historical sources and or by examining the rhetorical means through which the speakers model the recent past This book aims at advanced students and professional scholars This volume focuses on the representation of the recent past in classical Athenian oratory and investigates the ability of the orators to interpret it according to their interests the inability of the Athenians to make an objective assessment of persons and events of the recent past and their unwillingness to hear the truth make self criticism and take responsibility for bad results
