Recent History A Novel:

History and the Contemporary Novel David Cowart, 1989 Cowart presents a study of international historical fiction since World War II with reflections on the affinities between historical and fictional narrative analysis of the basic modes of historical fiction and readings of a number of historical novels including John Barth's The Sot Weed Factor Marguerite Yourcenar's Memoirs of Hadrian Russell Hoban's Riddley Walker Margaret Atwood's The Handmaid's Tale Giuseppe Tomasi Di Lampedusa's The Leopard D M Thomas's The White Hotel William Faulkner's Go Down Moses and Umberto Eco's The Name of the Rose He proposes recognizing four modes of the historical novel the past as a distant mirror of the present fictions whose authors seek to pinpoint the precise historical moment when the modern age or some prominent feature of it came into existence fictions whose authors aspire purely or largely to historical verisimilitude and fictions whose authors reverse history to contemplate utopia and dystopia in the future Thus historical fiction can be organized under the rubrics The Distant Mirror The Turning Point The Way It Was and The Way It Will Be This fourfold schema and his focus on postwar novels set Cowart's work apart from previous studies which have not devoted adequate space to the contemporary historical novel Cowart argues that postwar historical fiction merits more extensive treatment because it is the product of an age unique in the annals of history an age in which history itself may end

The English Novel in History, 1950 to the Present Professor Steven Connor, Steven Connor, 2008-03-07 Steven Connor provides in depth analyses of the novel and its relationship with its own form with contemporary culture and with history He incorporates an extensive and varied range of writers in his discussions such as George Orwell William Golding Angela Carter Doris Lessing Timothy Mo Hanif Kureishi Marina Warner Maggie Gee Written by a foremost scholar of contemporary culture and theory The English Novel in History 1950 to the Present offers not only a survey but also a historical and cultural context to British literature produced in the second half of this century

When Novels Were Books Jordan Alexander Stein, 2020-01-07 A literary scholar explains how eighteenth century novels were manufactured sold bought owned collected and read alongside Protestant religious texts As the novel developed into a mature genre it had to distinguish itself from these similar looking books and become what we now call literature Literary scholars have explained the rise of the Anglophone novel using a range of tools from Ian Watt's theories to James Watt's inventions Contrary to established narratives When Novels Were Books reveals that the genre beloved of so many readers today was not born secular national middle class or female For the first three centuries of their history novels came into readers hands primarily as printed sheets ordered into a codex bound along one edge between boards or paper wrappers Consequently they shared some formal features of other codices such as almanacs and Protestant religious books produced by the same printers Novels are often mistakenly credited for developing a formal feature character that was in fact incubated in religious books The novel did not emerge all at once it had to differentiate itself from the goods with which it was in competition Though it was written for sequential reading the early novel's main technology for dissemination was the codex a platform designed for random access This peculiar circumstance led to the genre's insistence on continuous cover to cover reading even as the media platform it used encouraged readers to dip in and out at will and read discontinuously Jordan Alexander Stein traces this tangled history showing how the physical format of the book shaped the stories that were fit to print

Family Constellations in Contemporary Ibero-American and Slavic Literatures Anna Artwińska,Ángela Calderón,Jobst Welge,2024-10-07 This volume examines Ibero American as well as Slavic literatures of the 21st century and studies how historical imaginaries in family narratives are functionalized for both individual and collective and post national identities The analysis proceeds along three conceptual axes What these narratives have in common is that they construct specific constellations of the historical imagination and of family whereby family is here conceived not so much as an organic micro unity but rather as changing multiple relations between individual members godparents first and second degree relatives non blood related family members present and absent members adopted children etc Furthermore these novels are often grounded in trans generational memories They are written by members of a generation that as a rule did not directly experience these historical events It is also significant that these narratives are no longer conceived as representing national identities but paradigmatically speak for a collective that defines itself in regional ethnic religious or ideological terms It seems therefore that these narratives of family constellations are in need of more flexible typological rubrics and interpretive frameworks Intended as a sustained comparative study of these family narratives this volume is a contribution in understanding how historical caesura experiences and their literary representation work on the self understanding of the present

Modern Fantasy: The 100 Best Novels David Pringle,2014-09-30 Pringle presents his selections in chronological order and includes a synopsis of the story a discussion of the author's overall contribution to fantasy literature critical commentary on the title's significance and a brief publishing history An introductory essay tackles the difficulty of defining fantasy while a Brief Bibliography directs readers to other discussions of the genre By no means a definitive subject guide this entertaining volume should serve as a solid introduction to the elusive field of imaginative literature

Much Ado about Nonexistence Aloysius Martinich,Avrum Stroll,2007 Fiction Reference and Nonexistence contains a new contemporary theory of fiction and discusses the connection between language and reality Martinich and Stroll two of America's leading philosophers explore fiction and undertake an analytic philosophical study of fiction and its reference and its relation to truth
