Lighting Up Mimi Nichter, 2015-02-13 While the past 40 years have seen significant declines in adult smoking this is not the case among young adults who have the highest prevalence of smoking of all other age groups At a time when just about everyone knows that smoking is bad for you why do so many college students smoke Is it a short lived phase or do they continue throughout the college years And what happens after college when they enter the real world Drawing on interviews and focus groups with hundreds of young adults Lighting Up takes the reader into their everyday lives to explore social smoking Mimi Nichter argues that we must understand more about the meaning of social and low level smoking to youth the social contexts that cause them to take up or not take up the habit and the way that smoking plays a large role in students social lives Nichter examines how smoking facilitates social interaction helps young people express and explore their identity and serves as a means for communicating emotional states Most college students who smoked socially were confident that this was no big deal After all they were not really smokers and they would only be smoking for a short time But as graduation neared they expressed ambivalence or reluctance to quit As many grads today step into an uncertain future where the prospect of finding a good job in a timely manner is unlikely their 20s may be a time of great stress and instability For those who have come to depend on the comfort of cigarettes during college this array of life stressors may make cutting back or quitting more difficult despite one s intentions and understandings of the harms of tobacco And emerging products on the market like e cigarettes offer an opportunity to move from smoking to vaping Lighting Up considers how smoking fits into the lives of young adults and how uncertain times may lead to uncertain smoking trajectories that reach into adulthood
