Targowski, 2016 The aim of this book is to synthesize the role of information throughout the history of civilization's development. This will be defined through the convergence of a) the cumulative evolution and revolution of the intellect, cognition, data, information, concepts, knowledge, and wisdom; b) labor; and c) politics, which seek to control the environment, society, and the world, applying culture and infrastructure as tools. Whereas researchers reveal the myriad of dimensions of the social order and its historiography, this book provides a synthesis of the relations which is limited to information and its informing systems and civilization within the context of historiosophie (history with judgment). The method presented in this book, the architectural approach to the dynamics of civilizational development, is a new layer over the quantitative history based on statistical data. In an architectural synthesis of civilization, we seek a big picture of civilization waves in order to develop some criteria-oriented views of the world and its future predictability. To understand the crises and conflicts of civilization, which are driven by technology in recent centuries, such a synthesis as well as optimism for human proactive adaptation, survival, and development must be undertaken. This approach to civilizational development should allow humans to eventually reinvent the future in a continuous manner. We, in due course, should be able to predict the rate of change and provide civilization-bridging solutions based on original thinking. It is important to remind ourselves that information is as old as our world, about 15 billion years, because plants and trees, and in general, non-human nature, produces all sorts of information, for example, the changing colors of plants and trees, which is associated with the different seasons. When the first living organisms appeared on our planet, they had the ability to inform as well by changing forms, colors, signals, and so on. The first signs of life on our planet came into being about 3.85 billion years ago. Therefore, organism-based life on the Earth actually came to be over a period of just 130 million years. Hominids diverged from apes some 10.6 million years ago, instinct-driven information communication, i.e., behavior less controlled by cognition, and the first humans, bipeds with large brains who could use tools and sound-driven information communication, took form around 6.25 million years ago in Southeast Africa. Homo symbolicus, who could skillfully use language, appeared about 60,000 years ago. The origin of civilization, some 6,000 years ago, marks the beginning of the first advanced information communication systems applied by humans who could even record information.

Operations Management Michael Lewis, Nigel Slack, 2003 The material is concerned with fundamental activities of organizations, how they provide goods and services. The increase in international competition has seen a resurgence of interest in the development of this field. Management, 1987 Management, a Bibliography for NASA Managers, 1987-04 NASA SP-7500 United States. National Aeronautics and Space Administration, 1986 The Social and Economic Impact of New Technology 1978-84: A Select Bibliography Leslie Grayson, 2012-12-06 Silicon chip technology, microprocessor technology, information technology, or quite simply new technology. These are some of the names representing the microelectronics revolution, depending upon the audience being addressed by speaker or writer. No previous new industrial development has caused such widespread publicity and discussion amongst users and researchers as the new technology Concern is being expressed about the effects of new technology on employment job satisfaction social life leisure activities and the economics of commerce and industry The late 70s saw many doom laden predictions of those effects but by 1983 both management and trade unions were taking a more objective view of the social and economic impacts and many correspondents now see the new technology as a means of opening up new industries and overcoming the effects of world recessions The chip has involved the factory floor the office the supermarket and the home Electronic funds transfer electronic shopping microelectronic domestic appliances word processors and microprocessor controlled machinery mean that the new technology has pervaded all aspects of social and economic life and the developed countries are now coming to accept it as part of society as a whole Inevitably the flood of literature on the social and economic impacts of new technology has been overwhelming Unfortunately the quality of information and arguments propagated at conferences in journal papers and research reports has indicated that there has been little quantifiable evidence available on the effects of these impacts
