Office Buildings ,1995      Structures and Architecture Paulo J. Cruz,2013-06-27 Although the disciplines of architecture and structural engineering have both experienced their own historical development their interaction has resulted in many fascinating and delightful structures To take this interaction to a higher level there is a need to stimulate the inventive and creative design of architectural structures and to persua      New Architecture and Technology Gyula Sebestyen,Christopher Pollington,2007-06-07 Many books have covered the topics of architecture materials and technology New Architecture and Technology is the first to explore the interrelation between these three subjects It illustrates the impact of modern technology and materials on architecture The book explores the technical progress of building showing how developments both past and present are influenced by design methods It provides a survey of contemporary architecture as affected by construction technology It also explores aspects of building technology within the context of general industrial social and economic developments The reader will acquire a vocabulary covering the entire range of structure types and learn a new approach to understanding the development of design      Time-based Architecture Bernard Leupen,René Heijne,Jasper van Zwol,2005 This study is part of the project Context and Modernity at the Faculty of Architecture Delft University of Technology      Architects' and Builders' Magazine ,1906      Architecture and Urbanism in Modern Korea Inha Jung,2013-07-31 Although modernization in Korea started more than a century later than in the West it has worked as a prominent ideology throughout the past century in particular it has brought radical changes in Korean architecture and cities Traditional structures and ways of life have been thoroughly uprooted in modernity s continuous negation of the past This book presents a comprehensive overview of architectural development and urbanization in Korea within the broad framework of modernization Twentieth century Korean architecture and cities form three distinctive periods The first defined as colonial modern occurred between the early twentieth century and 1945 when Western civilization was transplanted to Korea via Japan and a modern way of life albeit distorted began taking shape The second is the so called developmental dictatorship period Between 1961 and 1988 the explosive growth of urban populations resulted in large scale construction booms and architects delved into modern identity through the locality of traditional architecture The last period began in the mid 1990s and may be defined as one of modernization settlement and a transition to globalization With city populations leveling out urbanization and architecture came to be viewed from new perspectives Inha Jung however contends that what is more significant is the identification of elements that have remained unchanged Jung identifies continuities that have been formed by long standing relationships between humans and their built environment and despite rapid modernization are still deeply rooted in the Korean way of life For this reason in the twentieth century regionalism exerted a great influence on Korean architects Various architectural and urban principles that Koreans developed over a long period while adapting to the natural environment have provided important foundations for architects works By exploring these sources this carefully researched and amply illustrated book makes an original contribution to defining modern identity in Korea's architecture housing and urbanism
