Scientific Blacksmith Technology And Society:

Pastoralism and Socio-technological Transformations in Northern Benin Georges Djohy, 2017 Pastoralists throughout Africa face increasing pressures. In Benin, governmental development policies and programmes in crop farming are changing power relations between herders and farmers to favour the latter. How are the Fulani pastoralists responding to these threats to their existence? Georges Djohy explores the dynamics in local use of natural resources and in inter-ethnic relations resulting from development interventions. He combines the approaches of science and technology studies looking at the co-construction of society and technology and political ecology looking at the power relations shaping the dynamics of economic, environmental and social change so as to throw light on the forces of marginalisation, adaptation and innovation at work in northern Benin. Having worked there for many years, Djohy has been able to uncover gradual processes of socio-technological change that are happening behind the scenes of agricultural development involving mechanisation, herbicide use, tree planting, land registration and natural resource conservation. He reveals how farmers are using these interventions as weapons in order to gain more rights over larger areas of land, in other words to support indigenous land grabbing from herders who had been using the land since decades for grazing. He documents how the Fulani are innovating to ensure their survival, e.g. by using new technologies for transport and communication, developing new strategies of livestock feeding and herd movement and developing complementary sources of household income. The Fulani are organising themselves from local to national level to provide technological and socio-cultural services, manage conflicts and gain a stronger political voice, e.g. to be able to achieve demarcation of corridors for moving livestock through cultivated areas. They even use non-functioning mini-dairies, another example of development intervention to demonstrate their modernity and to open up other opportunities to transform their pastoral systems. This book provides insights into normally hidden technical and social dynamics that are unexpected outcomes of development interventions.

Handbook of Research on Theoretical Perspectives on Indigenous Knowledge Systems in Developing Countries Ngulube, Patrick, 2016-09-12 There has been a growth in the use, acceptance and popularity of indigenous knowledge. High rates of poverty and a widening economic divide is threatening the accessibility to western scientific knowledge in the developing world where many indigenous people live. Consequently, indigenous knowledge has become a potential source for sustainable development in the developing world. The Handbook of Research on Theoretical Perspectives on Indigenous Knowledge Systems in Developing Countries presents interdisciplinary research on knowledge management, sharing and transfer among indigenous communities. Providing a unique perspective on alternative knowledge systems, this publication is a critical resource for sociologists, anthropologists, researchers and graduate-level students in a variety of fields.

Can Emerging Technologies Make a Difference in Development? Rachel A. Parker, Richard P. Appelbaum, 2013-02-28 In this innovative and entirely original text, which has been thoughtfully edited to ensure coherence and readability across disciplines, scientists and practitioners from around the world provide evidence of the opportunities for and the challenges of developing collaborative approaches to bringing advanced and emerging technology to poor communities in developing countries in a responsible and sustainable manner This volume will stimulate and satisfy readers seeking to engage in a rich and challenging discussion integrating many strands of social thought and physical science For those also seeking to creatively engage in the great challenges of our times for the benefit of struggling farmers sick children and people literally living in the dark around the world may this volume also spark imagination inspire commitment and provoke collaborative problem solving

Science And Technology Robert Evenson, Gustav Ranis, 2019-06-26 This book presents several general theoretical notions about the process of science and technology as it relates to development It develops the international dimension of science and technology in terms of the international exchange processes and the appropriateness and modification of technology

The Projected and Prophetic: Humanity in Cyberspace, Cyberspace, and Science Fiction Jordan J. Copeland, 2020-03-31 This volume was first published by Inter Disciplinary Press in 2011 The papers collected in this volume document the exchange and development of ideas that comprised the 5th Global Conference on Visions of Humanity in Cyberspace Cyberspace and Science Fiction hosted at Mansfield College Oxford United Kingdom in July 2010 As in the past the conference was driven by questions related to how cyberspace cyberspace and science fiction can provide new insights into the nature of what it is to be human and the understanding of what it means for human beings to live in communities In addition to these recurring themes there is just as importantly a disposition that is shared by those participating in this volume The authors as well the writers thinkers and filmmakers they consider in their essays demonstrate an intrepid and inquisitive approach that tests age old questions within the rapidly expanding but still vaguely defined spaces that new technologies have afforded us Moreover in many ways the conference and present volume reflect their subject which has always been situated self consciously and comfortably between the receding boundaries that have traditionally served both to delineate various academic disciplines and to distinguish real scholarship from popular discourse Thus as evidenced in the chapters of this volume the conference benefited from the participation of delegates who represented a variety of fields methodologies and perspectives

Tradition and Modernity Kwame Gyekye, 1997-08-28 In this important and pioneering book Kwame Gyekye examines postcolonial African experience from a viewpoint receptive to aspects of both traditional African cultures and Western political and moral theory African people in their attempt to evolve ways of life compatible with an increasingly globalized world cultural intellectual and political scene face a number of unique societal challenges some stemming Gyekye argues from traditional African values and practices others representing the legacy of European colonialism Enlisting Western political and philosophic concepts to clear comparative advantage Gyekye addresses a wide range of concrete problems afflicting postcolonial African states such as ethnicity and nation building the relationship of tradition to modernity the relationship of the nation state to community the nature of political authority and political legitimation political corruption and the threat to traditional moral and social values practices and institutions in the wake of rapid social change With striking flexibility and rare insight Gyekye assesses the value of both traditional and non African cultural components for the future of African societies and proposes alternative social and political models capable of forging a modernity appropriate for Africa The resulting book Tradition and Modernity Philosophical Reflections on the African Experience is a brilliant new contribution to postcolonial theory and will be of deep interest to scholars of political and moral philosophy cultural studies and African philosophy and politics and to anyone else concerned with the efforts of non Western societies to properly modernize

Philosophy of Technology Maarten J Verkerk, Jan Hoogland, Jan van der Stoep, Marc J. de Vries, 2015-09-16 Philosophy of Technology An introduction for technology and business students is an accessible guide to technology s changes their ubiquitousness and the many questions these raise Designed for those with no philosophical background in mind it is ideal for technology and engineering students or specialists who want to learn to think critically about how their work influences society and our daily lives The technological business environment and daily experiences are the starting point of the book and the authors reflect upon these practices from a philosophical point of view The text goes on to present a critical analysis of the subject including development manufacturing sales and marketing and the use of technological products and services The abstract ideas are made easier to grasp with a story telling approach a vivid history of the discipline and colourful portraits of the core thinkers in this domain as well as four case studies drawing from various engineering disciplines to demonstrate how philosophy can and should influence technology in practice The first comprehensive introduction to this vibrant young sub discipline in over 20 years this is an ideal textbook for students of technology and engineering beginning a course or project in the philosophy of their subject History of American Industrial Science Courtney Robert Hall,1972

The Land-Grant Colleges and the Reshaping of American Higher Education Roger L. Geiger,2017-07-05 This work provides a critical reexamination of the origin and development of America s land grant colleges and universities created by the most important piece of legislation in higher education The story is divided into five parts that provide closer examinations of representative developments Part I describes the connection between agricultural research and American colleges Part II shows that the responsibility of defining and implementing the land grant act fell to the states which produced a variety of institutions in the nineteenth century Part III details the first phase of the conflict during the latter decades of the nineteenth century about whether land colleges were intended to be agricultural colleges or full academic institutions Part IV focuses on the fact that full fledged universities became dominant institutions of American higher education The final part shows that the land grant mission is alive and well in university colleges of agriculture and in fact is inherent to their identity Including some of the best minds the field has to offer this volume follows in the fine tradition of past books in Transaction s Perspectives on the History of Higher Education series African Science Education Jamaine Abidogun,2018-03-15 Based on interrogation and review of historical and current cultural and indigenous knowledge combined with extensive curriculum and classroom analysis this book identifies how indigenous science gender roles may be utilized to provide a more gender balanced and indigenous centered learning experience The book argues for the integration of African indigenous science into the secondary school curriculum as a way to strengthen students science comprehension by affirming their society s science contributions making clear connections between Indigenous and Western science and also as a way to promote female representation in the sciences This book will be of interest to scholars and practitioners of science education African education and indigenous knowledge Of Bicycles, Bakelites, and Bulbs Wiebe E.

Bijker,1997-01-03 This book crystallizes and extends the important work Wiebe Bijker has done in the last decade to found a full scale theory of sociotechnical change that describes where technologies come from and how societies deal with them Of Bicycles Bakelites and Bulbs integrates detailed case studies with theoretical generalizations and political analyses to offer a fully rounded treatment both of the relations between technology and society and of the issues involved in sociotechnical change The stories of the the safety bicycle the first truly synthetic plastic and the fluorescent light bulb each a fascinating case study in itself reflect a cross section of time periods engineering and scientific disciplines and economic social and political cultures The bicycle story explores such issues as the role of changing gender relationships in shaping a technology the Bakelite story examines the ways in which social factors intrude even in cases of seemingly pure chemistry and entrepreneurship and the fluorescent bulb story offers insights into the ways in which political and economic relationships can affect the form of a technology Bijker's method is to use these case studies to suggest theoretical concepts that serve as building blocks in a more and more inclusive theory which is then tested against further case studies His main concern is to create a basis for science technology and social change that uncovers the social roots of technology making it amenable to democratic politics
