Encyclopedia of Science and Technology Communication Susanna Hornig Priest,2010-07-14 The explosion of scientific information is exacerbating the information gap between richer poorer educated less educated publics The proliferation of media technology and the popularity of the Internet help some keep up with these developments but also make it more likely others fall further behind This is taking place in a globalizing economy and society that further complicates the division between information haves and have nots and compounds the challenge of communicating about emerging science and technology to increasingly diverse audiences Journalism about science and technology must fill this gap yet journalists and journalism students themselves struggle to keep abreast of contemporary scientific developments Scientist aided by public relations and public information professionals must get their stories out not only to other scientists but also to broader public audiences Funding agencies increasingly expect their grantees to engage in outreach and education and such activity can be seen as both a survival strategy and an ethical imperative for taxpayer supported university based research Science communication often in new forms must expand to meet all these needs Providing a comprehensive introduction to students professionals and scholars in this area is a unique challenge because practitioners in these fields must grasp both the principles of science and the principles of science communication while understanding the social contexts of each For this reason science journalism and science communication are often addressed only in advanced undergraduate or graduate specialty courses rather than covered exhaustively in lower division courses Even so those entering the field rarely will have a comprehensive background in both science and communication studies This circumstance underscores the importance of compiling useful reference materials The Encyclopedia of Science and Technology Communication presents resources and strategies for science communicators including theoretical material and background on recent controversies and key institutional actors and sources Science communicators need to understand more than how to interpret scientific facts and conclusions they need to understand basic elements of the politics sociology and philosophy of science as well as relevant media and communication theory principles of risk communication new trends and how to evaluate the effectiveness of science communication programmes to mention just a few of the major challenges This work will help to develop and enhance such understanding as it addresses these challenges and more Topics covered include advocacy policy and research organizations environmental and health communication philosophy of science media theory and science communication informal science education science journalism as a profession risk communication theory public understanding of science pseudo science in the news special problems in reporting science and technology science communication ethics

Research in Technical Communication Michael G. Moran, Debra Journet, 1985 This sourcebook demonstrates the vigorous work being done in the field of technical and scientific communication Collectively the essays offer researchers a basis from which to begin constructing the theoretical framework necessary for the study of technical communication The book begins with general concerns and progresses to particular applications The chapters comprising Part I outline larger theoretical perspectives from which to examine technical communication humanistic approaches to technical communication the history of technical communication communication theory and technical writing and the teaching of technical writing Part II examines the relationship of technical communication to traditional rhetorical concerns such as invention audience modes of organization and style Specific types of technical communication proposals reports and business correspondence among others are discussed in Part III The use of the computer oral presentations and specialized forms of technical communication are examined in Part IV The appendixes offer guides to textbooks and style manuals and an overview of the technical writing profession

Managing Global Communication in Science and Technology Peter J. Hager, H. J. Scheiber, 1999-11-05 In compiling articles from eighteen professionals in the field of science and technical communication this unique collection updates readers on the evolving theory teaching and practice within the field A framework is provided on the direction practitioners and academicians can focus their research or application on Extensive discussions are provided on the management of the dynamic growth in international and intercultural communication in technical and scientific disciplines Emphasis is also placed on understanding the issues and training for effectiveness
