The Stamp-seals of Ancient Cyprus A. T. Reyes, 2001 Glyptics had a long history in Cyprus from at least the fourteenth century BC the island produced seals in significant quantities in a variety of shapes and styles The cylinders from the Late Bronze Age are well documented but the stamp seals which came after them and preceded the gem industry of classical times have previously been neglected This study examines these in order to discover what they reveal about society at the end of the Late Bronze Age when they first appear and the subsequent Iron Age when they proliferated and moved into common use within the island Reyes discusses the different designs and styles of stamp seals and their development local tradition and foreign influence including a detailed discussion of evidence for Phoenician influence Also examined are materials and manufacture and the different uses they were put to inscriptions sealings votive practices and personal adornment There are several appendices and a glossary of terms

Writing and Society in Ancient Cyprus Philippa M. Steele, 2018-10-25 From its first adoption of writing at the beginning of the Late Bronze Age ancient Cyprus was home to distinctive scripts and writing habits often setting it apart from other areas of the Mediterranean and Near East This well illustrated volume is the first to explore the development and importance of Cypriot writing over a period of more than 1 500 years in the second and first millennia BC Five themed chapters deal with issues ranging from the acquisition of literacy and the adaptation of new writing systems to the visibility of writing and its role in the marking of identities The agency of Cypriots in shaping the island's literate landscape is given prominence and an extended consideration of the social context of writing leads to new insights on Cypriot scripts and their users Cyprus provides a stimulating case to demonstrate the importance of contextualised approaches to the development of writing systems
