Shaping China's Future In World Affairs The Role Of The United States:

Shaping China's Future In World Affairs Robert G Sutter, 2019-06-26 This book considers Chinese foreign policy and China's future role in world affairs in the context of the country's recent past. Robert Sutter shows that although it appears to be in U.S. interests for post-Mao leaders to continue moving toward international norms, a post-Deng leadership backed by growing economic and military power and reflecting profound changes in China's economy and society could move in markedly different directions. Most foreign powers appear willing to accommodate China, avoiding actions that could prompt a sharp shift in Chinese foreign policy, but Sutter argues that current U.S. policy intrudes on so many issues that are particularly sensitive for Beijing and for China's future that it represents perhaps the most critical variable determining how China will position itself in world affairs. Concluding that there is no guarantee the United States will use this influence wisely, Sutter examines the uncertainty and unpredictability of U.S. foreign policy in the post-Cold War environment that work against the creation of an effective U.S. policy toward China. Shaping China's Future in World Affairs: The U.S. Role, 1996

The author analyzes the key factors that shape China's domestic and international policies. He outlines a regime that is pragmatic in its international political and economic relations but highly protective on territorial and sovereignty issues, noting that it is a regime in transition and giving interpretations of where that transition might be headed. The author reviews U.S. objectives and courses of action and suggests that Chinese leaders will have as much difficulty predicting the future course of American policy as the other way around. He concludes with several useful guidelines for those charged with formulating policy with respect to China. Shaping China's Future in World Affairs ROBERT G. SUTTER, 2019-06-30

S. Role* Robert G. Sutter, 2013-01-31

In April 1996 the Army War College's Strategic Studies Institute held its Seventh Annual Strategy Conference. This year's theme was China Into the 21st Century: Strategic Partner and or Peer Competitor. Robert G Sutter, a Senior Specialist in International Policy with the Congressional Research Service of the Library of Congress, sets the scene for his discussion of the U.S. role in China's future by providing a comprehensive analysis of the key factors that shape China's domestic and international policies. He outlines a mixed picture of a regime today that is pragmatic in its international political and economic relations but highly protective on territorial and sovereignty issues. He also notes that it is a regime in transition and articulates the various interpretations of where that transition might be headed. But if understanding China is vital to effective U.S. policy, so too are achieving consensus on U.S. objectives and framing coherent courses of action. On this count, Dr. Sutter finds several competing outlooks at work both within and outside the U.S. Government. His review of these suggests that Chinese leaders will have as much difficulty predicting the future course of American policy as the other way around. Dr. Sutter concludes his paper with several useful guidelines for those charged with formulating instrumental policy with respect to China. These insights complete a thorough survey of the major issues, interactions, and choices which will shape the U.S.-China strategic relationship.

U.S. Army War College Guide to Strategy, Mao Zedong & China's Foreign Policy. Amrita Jash, 2025-07-22. This book analyses China's foreign policy from 1949 to 1976 through a cognitive-perceptual lens, emphasising Mao Zedong's central role as the primary decision-making authority. Moving beyond realist frameworks, it highlights how Mao's ideological worldview, shaped by his theory of contradictions, revolutionary zeal, and use of historical analogies, drove China's foreign policy, particularly in relation to Vietnam. His subjective interpretation of global affairs, reinforced by Marxist-Leninist principles and China's historical identity, guided key strategic decisions. The study underscores the importance of individual leaders' beliefs, perceptions, and psychological traits in shaping foreign policy, offering broader implications for understanding international relations through cognitive and psychological approaches.

China's Foreign Aid and Investment Diplomacy, Volume III. John F. Copper, 2016-04-29. Today, by many accounts, China is the world's foremost purveyor of foreign aid and foreign investment to developing countries. This is the product of China's miracle economic growth over a period of more than three decades, together with China's drive to become a major player in world affairs and accomplish this through economic rather than military means. This three-volume work is the first comprehensive study of China's aid and investment strategy to trace how it has evolved since Beijing launched its foreign aid diplomacy at the time of the founding of the People's Republic of China in 1949. Volume III offers an analysis of China's foreign aid and investment to countries outside of Asia: in Africa, Europe, the Middle East, Latin America, and Oceania. Africa was and is the most important of these regions, and it is given special treatment. In the concluding chapter, Copper reviews the findings of previous volumes, delineates China's most important victories and setbacks, and notes opposition to and criticism of China's aid and investment diplomacy. Copper gives evidence that will be shocking to some: the reality that China's financial help to developing countries is one of the most salient trends in international politics and constitutes a formidable challenge to the United States, Japan, and Europe, as well as international financial institutions.

China's Foreign Aid and Investment Diplomacy, Volume II. John F. Copper, 2016-04-29. Today, by many accounts, China is the world's foremost purveyor of foreign aid and foreign investment to developing countries.

This is the product of China's miracle economic growth over a period of more than three decades together with China's drive to become a major player in world affairs and accomplish this through economic rather than military means. This three volume work is the first comprehensive study of China's aid and investment strategy to trace how it has evolved since Beijing launched its foreign aid diplomacy at the time of the founding of the People's Republic of China in 1949. Volume II provides an analysis of China's foreign aid and investment to countries and regional organizations on the Asian continent covering all of its major sub regions during the period from 1950 to the present day. Copper considers motivating factors such as the Korean War, the Vietnam War and China's desire to challenge the West and later the Soviet Union. Also important to China and driving its aid and investment was China's pursuit of Communist Bloc solidarity, a search for secure borders and competition with India for influence in the Third World. Securing its imports of energy and raw materials and markets for its products came later. Marginalizing Taiwan and defeating it diplomatically constituted another goal of China's foreign aid and foreign investment analyzed here.

The US Policy Making Process for Post Cold War China Wenzhao Tao, 2017-07-13

Combining a study of American Think Tanks and a study of American diplomatic policy on China following the Cold War, this book explores in detail the policy making process, procedures and mechanisms as well as the roles of various interest groups in the policy making process for China related policies. Further, it dissects the policy making process with regard to selected sensitive policies such as the US diplomatic policy on Taiwan, China-US trade policy on China, US human rights policy on China and US environmental and energy policy on China, and analyzes the function and influence of the American Think Tanks in the policy debates. Characterized by its high theoretical value, wealth of historical materials and painstaking analysis, the book is not only of important academic value but also offers a valuable reference guide to support the practical work of related departments in the Chinese government.

China's Foreign Aid and Investment Diplomacy, Volume I John F.

Copper, 2016-04-29. Today, by many accounts, China is the world's foremost purveyor of foreign aid and foreign investment to developing countries. This is the product of China's miracle economic growth over a period of more than three decades together with China's drive to become a major player in world affairs and accomplish this through economic rather than military means. This three volume work is the first comprehensive study of China's aid and investment strategy to trace how it has evolved since Beijing launched its foreign aid diplomacy at the time of the founding of the People's Republic of China in 1949. Volume I examines the definitions, origins, nature and scope of foreign aid and investment by other countries. Using that background, John F. Copper then traces China's financial assistance to developing countries from the Mao period when China gave meaningful foreign aid despite its own economic struggles through the beginning of China's post 1978 economic boom and during subsequent decades of rapid economic growth. Copper shows that China has a more salient history in giving foreign assistance than any other country in the world while China's objectives in giving foreign assistance have changed markedly over time. China has always been driven by efforts to realize its foreign policy objectives and expand China's

Chinese Foreign Relations Robert G. Sutter, 2012-01-26 This comprehensive introduction to Chinese foreign relations examines the opportunities and limits China faces as it seeks growing international influence Tracing the record of twists and turns in Chinese foreign relations since the end of the Cold War Robert G Sutter provides a nuanced analysis that shows that despite its growing power Beijing is hampered by both domestic and international constraints Newly revised this edition features more extensive treatment of China's role in the international economy and greater discussion of its relations with the developing world Overall Sutter's balanced and thorough assessment shows China's leaders exerting more influence in world affairs but remaining far from dominant Facing numerous contradictions and trade offs they move cautiously as they deal with a complex global environment

China's Foreign Relations Denny Roy, 1998 In this timely text Denny Roy shows how the drive for security and power underlying Chinese foreign policy is reinforced by other important factors including China's internal political struggles and unique historically driven perceptions of international affairs Providing a wide ranging assessment of China's foreign policy the author explores the PRC's relationships with key international organizations and countries including the United States Japan Russia Korea India and the Southeast Asian states

U.S. Policy Toward China Robert G. Sutter, 1998 Increased fluidity and pluralism in U S policy toward China in the post Cold War period have led to growing non governmental influence as both the administration and Congress have become the target of intense lobbying by organized groups concerned with human rights trade opportunities relations with Taiwan and other hotly debated issues This balanced study examines the central role of these organizations focusing especially on two key cases of policy reversal President Clinton's 1994 decision to delink human rights concerns from trade access and his 1995 decision to allow Taiwan's president to visit the United States albeit in a private capacity The recent movement toward a more consistent and coherent administration policy on China remains tentative and has been under mounting attack especially in the wake of Asian campaign contributions Although recognizing that U S policymakers must consider a wider range of interests than was the case during the Cold War Sutter argues that following the prevailing consensus among organized interests may lead to bad policy Instead he contends that U S foreign policy must strike a balance between satisfying domestic concerns while buttressing interests abroad
