A Novel Marketplace Evan Brier, 2012-02-25 As television transformed American culture in the 1950s critics feared the influence of this newly pervasive mass medium on the nation's literature While many studies have addressed the rhetorical response of artists and intellectuals to mid twentieth century mass culture the relationship between the emergence of this culture and the production of novels has gone largely unexamined In A Novel Marketplace Evan Brier illuminates the complex ties between postwar mass culture and the making marketing and reception of American fiction Between 1948 when television began its ascendancy and 1959 when Random House became a publicly owned corporation the way American novels were produced and distributed changed considerably Analyzing a range of mid century novels including Paul Bowles's The Sheltering Sky Ray Bradbury's Fahrenheit 451 Sloan Wilson's The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit and Grace Metalious's

Peyton Place Brier reveals the specific strategies used to carve out cultural and economic space for the American novel just as it seemed most under threat During this anxious historical moment the book business underwent an improbable expansion by capitalizing on an economic boom and a rising population of educated consumers and by forming institutional alliances with educators and cold warriors to promote reading as both a cultural and political good A Novel Marketplace tells how the book trade and the novelists themselves successfully positioned their works as embattled holdouts against an oppressive mass culture even as publishers formed partnerships with mass culture institutions that foreshadowed the multimedia mergers to come in the 1960s As a foil for and a partner to literary institutions mass media corporations assisted in fostering the novel's development as both culture and commodity Indigenous Novels, Indigenized Worlds Don K.

Philpot, 2023-08-16 The fictional worlds created by many contemporary American and Canadian Indigenous novelists for young people provide unique access to the lived experiences of Indigenous people past present and future and the often inaccessible worlds they inhabit Readers age 10-16 will gain many insights about Indigenous people and themselves Indigenous and non-Indigenous readers alike through sustained immersion in fictional worlds where Indigenous people are foregrounded active autonomous respected and valued Guarding Eden Cameo Renae, 2017-07-26
