Community Ecology and Salamander Guilds Nelson G. Hairston, 1987-11-27 This informative book first published in 1987 presents the theories of community ecology within the context of a natural example The text describes and examines issues in community ecology and shows how research on salamanders has helped to solve some of the problems surrounding the theories Salamanders exist in stable populations of the kind assumed in community theory and are more appropriate than most other animals for research on the applications of that theory The interesting and meaningful results collected from observation on these excellent subjects posed challenges to beliefs within community ecology Life histories of salamanders fieldwork in distinctly differing habitats competition predation and evolution are discussed in an easily readable text Professional ecologists and students of community ecology and herpetology will be interested in the information synthesised in this book

Response of Two Terrestrial Salamander Species to Spring Burning in the Sierra

Nevada, California Karen Elizabeth Bagne, 2009 Terrestrial salamanders may be vulnerable to prescribed fire applications due to their moist permeable skin and limited mobility We present data collected on terrestrial salamander populations in a ponderosa pine dominated forest in the Sierra Nevada where fire was applied in the spring Two species Sierra ensatina Ensatina eschscholtzi platensis and gregarious slender salamander Batrachoseps gregarius were captured under coverboards Capture rates of ensatinas declined within the first 2 years after burning but postfire captures were similar to or greater than capture rates on unburned plots Capture rates of slender salamanders were more variable but high capture rates on burned plots suggest they persist following fire We captured fewer small ensatinas within 2 years of burning but sizes of slender salamanders pre and post burning were similar Salamanders were captured in both closed and open canopy forests and presence under individual coverboards was associated with deeper litter and greater canopy closure Coverboards may be avoided for a year or more by gregarious slender salamanders and capture rates were highest during winter and early spring Though sample sizes were small and conclusions should be made with caution results indicated no strong adverse effects from spring burning Suitable habitat may have been maintained by the patchy burn pattern characteristic of spring burns
