Personal Values And Consumer Psychology:

Personal Values and Consumer Psychology Robert E. Pitts, Arch G. Woodside, 1984 Handbook of Consumer Psychology Curtis P. Haugtvedt, Paul M. Herr, Frank R. Kardes, 2018-12-07 This Handbook contains a unique collection of chapters written by the world's leading researchers in the dynamic field of consumer psychology. Although these researchers are housed in different academic departments (ie marketing, psychology, advertising, communications), all have the common goal of attaining a better scientific understanding of cognitive, affective, and behavioral responses to products and services, the marketing of these products and services, and societal and ethical concerns associated with marketing processes. Consumer psychology is a discipline at the interface of marketing, advertising, and psychology. The research in this area focuses on fundamental psychological processes as well as on issues associated with the use of theoretical principles in applied contexts. The Handbook presents state-of-the-art research as well as providing a place for authors to put forward suggestions for future research and practice. The Handbook is most appropriate for graduate-level courses in marketing, psychology, communications, consumer behavior, and advertising.

The Influence of Values on Consumer Behaviour Erik Kosteljik, 2016-08-05 Substantial progress has been made in the conceptualization of values within psychology. The importance of values is also acknowledged in marketing, and companies use values to describe the core associations of their brand. Yet despite this, the values concept has received limited attention in marketing theory. The Influence of Values on Consumer Behaviour aims to bridge the gap between the conceptual progress of values in psychology and the current practice in marketing and branding literature. It proposes the Value Compass, a comprehensive value system that is cross-culturally applicable to consumer behaviour and brand choice. The values concept is used in psychology to identify the motivations underlying behaviour, a concept that marketers have borrowed to define brand values. This has led to conceptual confusion. Whereas in psychology the values system is perceived as an integrated structure, in marketing values are treated as abstract motivations that give importance to the benefits of consumption. Attention in marketing has shifted away from brand values toward brand personality, a set of human characteristics associated with a brand. Despite its popularity, brand personality has limitations in explaining consumer behaviour, while the potential merits of a brand values concept have remained largely unexplored. The book presents a meaningful alternative to the brand personality concept and promotes the benefits of using the Value Compass for assessing the effects of brand values and personal values on consumer choice. As such, it will be essential reading for academics and postgraduate students in the fields of marketing, consumer psychology, branding, consumer choice, behaviour, and business studies.

The Psychology of Values Clive Seligman, James M. Olson, Mark P. Zanna, 2013-05-13. The eighth Ontario Symposium brought together an international group of scholars who work in the area of the psychology of values. Among the categories these experts address are the conceptualizations of values, value systems, and value-attitude-behavior relations; methodological issues; the role of values in specific domains such as prejudice, commitment, and deservingness; and the transmission of values through family, media, and culture. Each chapter in the volume illustrates both the diversity and vitality of research on the psychology of values.

Consumer Behavior and Culture Marieke de Mooij, 2010-09-29 The Second Edition of this popular text brings up to date

Marieke de Mooij's important analysis of the impact of culture on consumer behavior worldwide. The author shows how it is increasingly vital for marketing students tomorrow's marketing professionals to understand the limits of consistent brand identities and universal advertising campaigns. Consumer behavior is not converging across countries and therefore it is of even greater importance to understand and be able to respond to differences in behavior. This edition offers a new chapter Chapter 7 on culture communication and media behavior that extends the prior edition's discussion on communication theories and advertising styles to cover differences in media usage worldwide particularly the use of the Internet.

Values, Lifestyles, and Psychographics Lynn R. Kahle, Larry Chiagouris, 2014-03-05 This book showcases papers presented at the annual Advertising and Consumer Psychology Conference. The contributors active scholars with both practitioner and academic backgrounds share an interest in the general area of psychographics values and lifestyle in advertising. The interdisciplinary and international mix of authors bring a diverse perspective to this volume which is divided into four nonorthogonal sections. The first section deals with theoretical and conceptual issues in advertising research while the second section presents chapters devoted to improving methodology. The final two sections illustrate how value lifestyle and psychographic research have been used to understand differences among people. The first of these final two sections emphasizes differences among people at different times commonly called trend research and the second emphasizes differences among people across national boundaries. Collectively these chapters illustrate how practical state of the art research in values lifestyles and psychographics can be. Thoughtful consideration of values lifestyles and psychographics as they are manifested in quality research can improve advertising and marketing practice and can help the business community deliver products and services that are more in line with consumers needs.
