N. Colamery, 2000 Literacy is defined as the ability to read and write One would expect that as the world enters the 21st century of the Third Millennium we wouldn't even need to discuss such a topic But alas that is not the case Even in the United States the only so called superpower left standing at the moment the rate of illiteracy is astonishing Some cynics say that there is no cause for alarm since the rich elite class needs millions of workers for low paid jobs and the less educated the better Others say that the lack of literacy is the fault of the schools and that if we double the pay of the teachers they will somehow suddenly be interested in teaching Still others say that with television and VCRs everywhere who needs to read and write anyway In this book we have collected citations sorted and indexed them in a way which we hope will be useful for those seeking further information on this topic At the beginning we offer excerpts from some of the fundamental reports summarising the dismal situation      Teaching Speaking and Listening in the Primary School Elizabeth Grugeon, 2005 This best selling introductory text updates teachers on national developments and best practice in speaking and listening in the classroom      Improving Teaching and Learning in the Humanities Martin

Ashley,2012-10-12 Focuses on religious education history geography and cross curricular planning in the primary school It includes discussion of the purpose of education and how the humanities fit with this purpose with particular reference to the 1998 Education Act and 1994 National Curriculum Review The book deals with the themes of time place values communication responsibilities and decision making These link the chapters and are fully complemented with case studies For each concept there are suggestions for practical classroom activities The reader will find the book invaluable in integrating the subjects across the National Curriculum

The Teaching of History in Primary Schools Hilary Cooper,2014-05-22 Updated in response to the 2000 revision of the National Curriculum this text explores ways in which curriculum balance and coherence can be achieved and a rich and exciting primary history curriculum retained while not underestimating the demands of literacy numeracy and ICT

Child Development and Teaching Pupils with Special Educational Needs Anne Anderson,Richard Gerrish,Lyn Layton,Jenny Morgan,Christina Tilstone,Anna Williams,2013-04-15 A thought provoking book which provides a framework for understanding the physical sensory emotional social linguistic and cognitive development of children with special educational needs It gives practitioners and students a sound grasp of the theoretical ground needed to fully understand cognitive development and will help them track children s developmental progress in order to optimise learning opportunities The authors handle complex topics in a highly accessible manner explaining how to put theory into practice In three lucidly argued sections they present an overview of the work of key theorists and thinkers including Vygotsky Piaget Freud Erikson Bruner and the Korning theorists an evaluation of the educational implications of the work of each theorist using illustrative case studies a consideration of areas of development in learning and teaching children with special educational needs This book will be a beacon for teachers head teachers educational psychologists and all practitioners involved in special needs education who seek the opportunity to help empower their pupils and enhance their own understanding
