Death of a Scientist Michael G. Welham, Mike Welham, 2013 A Time for War When a President and a Prime Minister want to go to war to remove a dictator and gain control of his country's vast reserves of oil, they must gain public support. A threat from the dictator, President, to use chemical and biological weapons gives them their reason. But the weapons inspectors just can't find the evidence that the country has such weapons. To counter this, a political dossier is created claiming the existence of weapons of mass destruction. A Time to Die Dr. John Finch, the world-renowned British specialist in chemical and biological weapons, is a member of a UN inspection team. He discovers that no such weapons exist, that the dossier is misleading, and refuses to toe the political line. His actions do not stop the war, but it results in him becoming a target for a political assassination. Chuck Cornell, a member of the ultra-secret Black Eagles, is assigned the task, and Dr. Finch is his victim. When Dr. Finch is found dead in a wood, it looks like suicide, but somebody has tampered with the crime scene. Unidentified men are seen in the area, and unusual activity at the scene is observed. A Time for Justice To halt the media frenzy, a formal inquiry is set up, but vital witnesses are not called, and a political cover-up looks likely. The Excalibur Foundation, an organization that seeks justice for political victims, decides to take up the case. They propose to hunt down Chuck Cornell themselves, and former French Foreign Legion sniper Dan Pierce is hired for the mission. During the operation to eliminate the Black Eagle, however, a political target comes into Dan's sights. Dan now holds the power to bring justice to the world; it's just a matter of squeezing the trigger.

Reward and Punishment in Social Dilemmas Paul A.M. Van Lange, Bettina Rockenbach, Toshio Yamagishi, 2014-03-26 One of the key scientific challenges is the puzzle of human cooperation. Why do people cooperate? Why do people help strangers, even sometimes at a major cost to themselves? Why do people want to punish others who violate norms and undermine collective interests? Reward and punishment is a classic theme in research on social dilemmas. More recently, it has received considerable attention from scientists working in various disciplines such as economics, neuroscience, and psychology. We know now that reward and punishment can promote cooperation in so-called public good dilemmas where people need to decide how much of their personal resources to contribute to the public good. Clearly, enjoying the contributions of others while not contributing is tempting. Punishment and reward are effective in reducing free riding. Yet the recent explosion of research has also triggered many questions. For example, who can reward and punish most effectively? Is punishment effective in any culture? What are the emotions that accompany reward and punishment? Even if reward and punishment are effective, are they also efficient, knowing that rewards and punishment are costly to administer? How can sanctioning systems best be organized to reduce free riding? The chapters in this book the first in a series on human cooperation explore the workings of reward and punishment how they should be organized and their functions in society thereby providing a synthesis of the psychology economics and neuroscience of human cooperation The West American Scientist ,1888 Science as a Career Choice Bernice T. Ediuson,Linda Beckman,1973-09-28 How can we identify the young men and women who as social and behavioral scientists of tomorrow will do the needed research to resolve our burgeoning social problems How can the most promising be attracted to an investigatory career How can they become identified with the behaviors attitudes and values that persons in science share A provocative body of literature about the psychology of the scientist and his career emerged in the post Sputnik era Drs Eiduson and Beckman bring together more than seventy of the most significant and representative studies These range over childhood and family influences academic experiences motivations interests and intellectual and personality strengths that have been examined as precursors for choosing science as adult work The psychological mechanisms involved in socializing a young person toward a scientific career are suggested in readings from the outstanding theoreticians in the field Selections on scientific career lines decisions and options at various stages of work and factors influencing goals and career development contribute to the understanding of the psychological life of the highly endowed and well functioning professional adult Through showing the certain completeness of effort of what has been learned about the psychology of scientists to date the authors anticipate a resurgence of interest in the creative individual a renewed enthusiasm for application and a refocusing of research on the issues unique to the social and behavioral research scientist
