Carroll, 2015-03-08 This book contends that in Love's Labour's Lost Shakespeare sought to discover the ways in which the imagination uses and abuses language The author's critical reading shows that the characters are endowed with a wide variety of rhetorical disguises Each assumes that his verbal and social point of view is correct and the limitations and virtues of each viewpoint are explored as the drama unfolds In an elegant examination of theme and style Professor Carroll heightens the reader's awareness of Shakespeare's marvellously inventive use of language The author analyzes the different kinds of style the characters' attitudes toward language the play's theatrical modes the frequent metamorphoses and the debates The term debate justified by Shakespeare's use of the medieval conflictus relates to both theme and structure The author finds that the conflicting theories about the proper relation of language and imagination are resolved stylistically and thematically only in the final Debate between Spring and Winter where the playwright reasserts the nature and value of good art Originally published in 1976 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905

Love, Heterosexuality and Society Paul Johnson, 2007-04-11 Heterosexuality is a largely silent set of practices and identities it is assumed to be everywhere and yet often remains unnamed and unexplored Despite recent changes in the theoretical understanding and representation of sexuality heterosexuality continues to be socially normative Forging a new agenda for the study of heterosexuality this in depth volume the first research monograph to focus on heterosexuality and society presents an empirical study of the construction negotiation and enactment of heterosexual sexuality Using detailed interview data it investigates how heterosexuality as both an identity and a set of practices is accomplished through love relationships Rather than assuming that romantic love is an outcome or expression of a pre defined sexuality Johnson explores how sexuality is brought to life through love Situated in the ongoing theoretical debates concerning the relationship between gender and sexuality Paul Johnson's book shows how ways of loving are interwoven with the construction practice regulation and government of heterosexuality Excellently written this important book also looks at gender in society and explores such areas as heterosexual subjectivities and the borders of desire As such the research it contains will be valuable for all students of sociology and gender studies to the questions above and more within the pages of this book      Becoming Two in Love Roland J. De Vries, 2013-07-25 This book draws Søren Kierkegaard and Luce Irigaray into conversation on the nature and ethics of sexual difference. While these two initially seem like doubtful dialogue partners, the conversation between them yields a rich and compelling account of intersubjectivity between man and woman, an account that moves beyond the limited and tired debate over egalitarianism vs. complementarianism. Through engagement with Irigaray and Kierkegaard, this book develops a constructive theological ethics of sexual difference that focuses on an epistemological and subjective gap that sets man and woman at a decisive distance from each other. They are a mystery to each other. Yet it is also an ethical framework that allows woman and man to encounter one another in ways that respect the independence, subjectivity, and becoming of each. Above all, this is a theological ethics of sexual difference that centers on Jesus Christ, who is defined as the middle term in every relationship and whose love command defines the encounter between man and woman in difference.
