Fate and Freedom in the Novels of David Adams Richards Sara MacDonald, Barry Craig, 2017-05-04 This book explores the understanding of freedom developed in the later novels of celebrated Canadian author David Adams Richards Many reviewers highlight two interconnected features in Richards novels a seemingly rigid determinism of setting and sociodemographics and a resulting hopelessness In contrast Richards describes the quest of human life and the purpose of his novels as a search for freedom This book explores the account of freedom that is developed through the course of four of Richards's works The Friends of Meager Fortune Mercy Among the Children The Lost Highway and Crimes Against My Brother Following the Augustinian thread that informs Richards's writing we argue that rather than presenting an understanding of human life that is bleak or hopeless Richards instead reveals an argument wherein one's happiness and freedom is found in the midst of love

Richards, 2012-03-06 David Adams Richards explores man's relationship with nature whether fishing salmon on the Miramichi hunting moose or deer losing your way in the woods or sneaking away from a bear This book is about hunters and fishermen about history and memory Richards weaves together the tales that have informed his life as a fisherman He has learned his skill from the guides and the poachers the sports and the city slickers who have all fished the Miramichi He learns about perseverance and respecting nature and he reflects on the changes that the modern world has brought to the great river Lines on the Water abounds with lore and wisdom humor and most of all passion Publisher's description

Setting in the East David Creelman, 2003-03-03 He shows that realism arrived comparatively late to the Maritime provinces and argues that the emergence of a realist style corresponded with a dramatic period of economic and cultural disruption during which the Eastern provinces were transformed from one Canada's most developed prosperous and promising regions into one characterized by chronic underemployment and underdevelopment The region is thus torn between its memory of an earlier more traditional social order and its present experience as a modern industrial society These tensions are embedded in the Maritime character and have affected not only the lives of its people but the imaginations and texts of its writers The stories of Thomas Raddall Hugh MacLennan Charles Bruce Ernest Buckler Alden Nowlan Alistair MacLeod Donna Smyth Budge Wilson and David Adams Richards have been deeply influenced by the cultural shifts they have observed In the last two decades a host of new literary voices has emerged and Creelman also explores the works of such writers as Ann Marie MacDonald Lynn Coady Nancy Bauer Deborah Joy Corey Carol Bruneau Alan Wilson Leo McKay and Sheldon Currie He shows that these Maritime artists share a common regional identity that shapes their narratives as they find their own paths through the tensions which envelop them *Hey Baby!
