Operating Systems (Self Edition 1.1.Abridged) Sibsanakar Halder, 2016-05-29 Some previous editions of this book were published from Pearson Education ISBN 9788131730225 This book designed for those who are taking introductory courses on operating systems presents both theoretical and practical aspects of modern operating systems. Although the emphasis is on theory while exposing you the reader the subject matter, this book maintains a balance between theory and practice. The theories and technologies that have fueled the evolution of operating systems are primarily geared towards two goals: user convenience in maneuvering computers and efficient utilization of hardware resources. This book also discusses many fundamental concepts that have been formulated over the past several decades and that continue to be used in many modern operating systems. In addition, this book also discusses those technologies that prevail in many modern operating systems such as UNIX, Solaris, Linux, and Windows. While the former two have been used to present many in-text examples, the latter two are dealt with as separate technological case studies. They highlight the various issues in the design and development of operating systems and help you correlate theories to technologies. This book also discusses Android, exposing you to a modern software platform for embedded devices. This book supersedes ISBN 9788131730225 and its other derivatives from Pearson Education India. They have been used as textbooks in many schools worldwide. You will definitely love this self-edition and you can use this as a textbook in undergraduate-level operating systems courses.

Local Theories of Argument Dale Hample, 2021-03-25. Argumentation is often understood as a coherent set of Western theories birthed in Athens and developing throughout the Roman period, the Middle Ages, the Enlightenment, and Renaissance, and into the present century. Ideas have been nuanced, developed, and revised, but still the outline of argumentation theory has been recognizable for centuries or so it has seemed to Western scholars. The 2019 Alta Conference on Argumentation, co-sponsored by the National Communication Association and the American Forensic Association, aimed to question the generality of these intellectual traditions. This resulting collection of essays deals with the possibility of having local theories of argument: local to a particular time, a particular kind of issue, a particular place, or a particular culture. Many of the papers argue for reconsidering basic ideas about arguing to represent the uniqueness of some moment or location of discourse. Other scholars are more comfortable with the Western traditions and find them congenial to the analysis of arguments that originate in discernibly distinct circumstances. The papers represent different methodologies, cover the experiences of different nations at different times, examine varying sorts of argumentative events: speeches, court decisions, food choices, and sound explore particular personal identities and the issues highlighted by them, and have different overall orientations to doing argumentation scholarship. Considered together, the essays do not generate one simple conclusion, but they stimulate reflection about the particularity or generality of the experience of arguing, and therefore the scope of our theories.
