Metabolism And Clinical Implications Of Branched Chain Amino And Keto:

Branched Chain Amino and Keto Acids in Health and Disease S. A. Adibi, W. Fekl, U. Langenbeck, P. Schauder, 1985-01-11 Advances in Clinical Nutrition I.D.A. Johnston, 2012-12-06 The advent of any new and effective therapy is soon followed by large numbers of publications in which the indications and benefits are explored critically. It is not unexpected therefore that within five years of the first Bermuda Symposium on advances in parenteral nutrition that a second Symposium was considered appropriate to review progress and explore new areas of investigation as well as enlarging the scope of the meeting to include enteral nutrition. The rate of progress can be judged by the number of subjects which were not discussed at the first Symposium. For example, home parenteral nutrition, computer assisted assessment and prescribing, studies of body protein synthesis and breakdown and the role of branched chain amino acids are all new subjects for this Symposium which were not covered at all in the first meeting. Much progress has also been made to our understanding of the biochemical complications of parenteral nutrition and the problems related to long term access to the circulation. Nutritional care has become safer and more effective. There is an increasing awareness of the difficulties in making a true nutritional assessment in selecting patients for total parenteral nutrition and more attention has also been focussed on different approaches to enteral support in the management of undernourished patients. There is also continuing debate on the cost effectiveness of this expensive method of treatment and critics look in vain for evidence of efficacy based on controlled trials in specific groups of patients.

Hepatic Encephalopathy in Chronic Liver Failure Livio Capocaccia, 2012-12-06 The meeting which took place in Rome on November 19th and 20th of 1982 is easily the best meeting on hepatic coma that I have ever attended and I have attended many. It was an exceedingly well planned meeting with prolonged opportunity for discussion and there was genuine interplay and exchange of ideas not the usual picture of a rushed meeting with investigators presenting their own point of view and talking past each other without a meaningful exchange which took place in Rome. My co editors and I hope that the published transcript which of course can only reflect what transpired in Rome on those two days does justice to a very intellectually exciting and gratifying exchange of ideas.
