Gender-responsive value chain analysis in Albania FAO; UN Women, 2024-10-31 Rural women are crucial contributors to Albania's agricultural sector and rural economy. They are actively involved in all stages of agrifood value chains as farmers, producers, processors, and consumers. Yet structural barriers limit their access to economic opportunities, thereby restricting also agrifood value chain sustainable and inclusive development. This publication employs FAO's gender responsive value chain approach to analyze three case studies from Elbasan, Puka, and Leskovik. It highlights the opportunities for strengthening the role of women producers and processors in value chains and identifies key barriers that hinder women's full participation. Agribusiness incubators are highlighted in the report as innovative solutions designed to meet the specific needs of rural women and promote their economic empowerment. These incubators could play a crucial role in helping women overcome barriers in the agrifood sector, fostering their participation and unlocking new opportunities for the development of specific agrifood value chains.

The Maritime Farmer and Co-operative Dairyman, 1924 The Power of Femininity in the New South Anastatia Sims, 1997 The Power of Femininity in the New South demonstrates how the legendary strength and moral authority of the South's steel magnolias inspired a turn of the century women to move from the parlor to the political arena. With a comprehensive examination of the women's voluntary associations that proliferated in North Carolina between 1880 and 1930, Anastatia Sims chronicles the emergence of women, both black and white, in a political terrain torn between the tyranny of white supremacy and the promise of Progressive reform She tells how organized women as they called themselves came to terms with a sacred cultural icon of the antebellum South the complex often contradictory ideal of southern femininity and how they explored the ideal s possibilities discovered its limitations and ultimately transformed it by their own actions
