Business Improvement Districts Goktug Morcol,Lorlene Hoyt,Jack W. Meek,Ulf Zimmermann,2017-09-29 Initiated and governed by property or business owners under the authorization of state and local governments business improvement districts BIDs have received a very mixed reception To some they are innovative examples of self governance and public private partnerships to others they are yet another example of the movement toward the privatization of what should be inherent government responsibilities Among the first books to present a collection of scholarly work on the subject Business Improvement Districts Research Theories and Controversies brings together renowned leaders in the field to compile the highest quality theoretical legal and empirical studies into one comprehensive volume Investigating fundamental concerns at the core of the debate as well as potential solutions this groundbreaking resource Tackles the need for improved problem solving and efficiency in service delivery Examines new and innovative policy tools for both the public and private sectors Evaluates whether BIDs do ignore the needs and voices of residential property owners Discusses the challenge created by social segregation in cities Addresses lack of accountability by BIDs to the public and elected representatives From different perspectives leading practitioners and academics analyze the pros and cons of BIDs both in the United States and around the world They look at their impact on urban planning and retail revitalization consider their legal implications and explore ways to measure BID performance Filled with case studies of urban centers including San Diego Atlanta New York Toronto and Capetown and state models such as New Jersey and Pennsylvania this examination bring together essential information for researchers as well as those leaders and policy makers looking to adopt a BID model or improve one already in place

Integrating Study Abroad Into the Curriculum Elizabeth Brewer,Kiran Cunningham,2023-07-03 With the increased interest in study abroad from government educators employers and students the question is is study abroad engendering the desired intercultural competencies and intellectual development To achieve this goal this book proposes two strategies structure study abroad to bridge the separation of academic learning from experiential and intercultural learning and integrate study abroad with the undergraduate curriculum In proposing this integration the editors take into account the need for institutional change and recognize faculty members concerns about maintaining the integrity of the curriculum teaching in areas outside their expertise and keeping up with ever evolving institutional missions This book opens with two chapters presenting different theoretical perspectives relevant to the integration of study abroad into the curriculum The following nine chapters provide examples from a variety of disciplines from anthropology and religious studies to literature urban studies biology and public health and within such contexts as distance learning service learning and the senior thesis The concluding chapter considers faculty development activities and institutional structures and policies that support curriculum integration While the examples are drawn from Beloit College and Kalamazoo College liberal arts colleges with substantial study abroad enrollments and nationally recognized for their innovative practices readers will recognize they are easily adaptable to their own institutions The two colleges achieved their curricular innovations with limited financial resources and in the context that most of their students are dependent on financial aid The transformational ideas and practices described here provide material for reflection and campus conversations for anyone concerned with developing global citizens and well educated students and offer a blueprint for implementation
