Cyr,2000-08 The end of the Cold War provides challenges and opportunities for American foreign policy leadership that arguably have been equalled in modern times only by the period in which the Cold War began The United States and the European Pillar William C. Cronwell,2016-07-27 The first major study of Atlantic political relations since World War 2 that uses a comparative perspective to analyze U S foreign policy and U S European relations in the context of a Western Europe attempting to speak with one voice The book examines U S policy toward European unity and the evolution of a West European pillar in foreign policy and defence contrasts U S and European approaches toward specific global issues and considers Atlantic relations in light of the dramatic European upheavals in 1989 90 International Issues and Perspectives ,1983 Future Survey Annual 1983 Michael Marien,1984-01-01 Europe Versus America Bård Bredrup Knudsen,1984 Professional Journal of the United States Army ,1982 Military Review ,1982 Materials for Teaching about Europe Fay Metcalf,Catherine Edwards,1986 The Declining Hegemon Joseph Lepgold,1990-11-21 Joseph Lepgold s book examines the substance of and rationale for the American defense commitment to Europe between 1960 and 1990 a period marked by change in the U S world position and continues into the 1990s in light of the recent changes in Europe Lepgold explores how and why political leaders have adapted to this change His volume is the analysis of a hegemonic state s foreign policy adaption His study probes such questions as If policymakers do not adjust basic policy priorities what other tradeoffs are made Do these constitute meaningful patterns Do commitments resist change or are they context dependent and supple The focus of this provocative study is on U S policy toward Europe rather than NATO and its European members Chapter one of The Declining Hegemon provides the background for Chapters two and three s analytic discussion of policy adaption It examines four policy debates of the late 1970s and 1980s these discuss past adaption as well as future choices These debates question the decline of U S power the future U S role in Europe whether any of the 1950 commitments should be adjusted and the relationship of foreign policy commitments and resources whether they should grow and decline in tandem Chapters four through six provide a decade by decade case study of U S policy The last chapter of Lepgold s timely study draws conclusions and suggests future implications in light of recent developments in Europe Quarterly Review of Military Literature ,1982 Europe ,1982 American Foreign Policy in an Uncertain World David P. Europeanization of Defense Peter Schmidt, Rand Corporation, 1984 The concept of Europeanization of defense has seen renewed interest in the last few years However there are many important differences in security views that are of special importance because the European system of states requires a real consensus to change the current security and defense structure This discussion distinguishes four models the European approach the two pillar approach the transnational cooperation approach and the diffusion approach Whether any of these approaches has a chance of realization may be explored by an examination of 1 the motives impulses and aims behind the general public debate 2 the attitudes of European elites 3 the general political strategic interests of important European states and 4 the history of efforts toward Europeanization The variety of incentives and motives behind the goal of Europeanization can hardly lead to a consensus for the first of the models Controversial ideas exist about the differences with the United States in the overall strategy toward the East it is uncertain whether Europe has enough resources to play a much more self sufficient role in defense matters there is no common threat perception and different understandings and assessments of the general idea of deterrence characterize the debate
