Ruth Benedict Patterns Of A Life:

Ruth Benedict Judith Modell, 1983 Ruth Benedict Judith Modell, 1984 Ruth Benedict, Patterns of a Life Judith Schachter, 1983 Traces the life of the great American anthropologist discusses her friendship with Margaret Mead and examines Benedict's most important writings Color in the Classroom Zoe Burkholder, 2011-10-05 Between the turn of the twentieth century and the Brown v Board of Education decision in 1954 the way that American schools taught about race changed dramatically This transformation was engineered by the nation's most prominent anthropologists including Franz Boas Ruth Benedict and Margaret Mead during World War II Inspired by scientific racism in Nazi Germany these activist scholars decided that the best way to fight racial prejudice was to teach what they saw as the truth about race in the institution that had the power to do the most good American schools Anthropologists created lesson plans lectures courses and pamphlets designed to revise what they called the race concept in American education They believed that if teachers presented race in scientific and egalitarian terms conveying human diversity as learned habits of culture rather than innate characteristics American citizens would become less racist Although nearly forgotten today this educational reform movement represents an important component of early civil rights activism that emerged alongside the domestic and global tensions of wartime Drawing on hundreds of first hand accounts written by teachers nationwide Zo Burkholder traces the influence of this anthropological activism on the way that teachers understood spoke and taught about race She explains how and why teachers readily understood certain theoretical concepts such as the division of race into three main categories while they struggled to make sense of more complex models of cultural diversity and structural inequality As they translated theories into practice teachers crafted an educational discourse on race that differed significantly from the definition of race produced by scientists at mid century Schoolteachers and their approach to race were put into the spotlight with the Brown v Board of Education case but the belief that racially integrated schools would eradicate racism in the next generation and eliminate the need for discussion of racial inequality long predated this Discussions of race in the classroom were silenced during the early Cold War until a new generation of antiracist multicultural educators emerged in the 1970s

Anthropologists and the Rediscovery of America, 1886-1965 John S. Gilkeson, 2010-09-20 This book examines the intersection of cultural anthropology and American cultural nationalism from 1886 when Franz Boas left Germany for the United States until 1965 when the National Endowment for the Humanities was established Five chapters trace the development within academic anthropology of the concepts of culture social class national character value and civilization and their dissemination to non anthropologists As Americans came to think of culture anthropologically as a complex whole far broader and more inclusive than Matthew Arnold's the best which has been thought and said so too did they come to see American communities as stratified into social classes distinguished by their subcultures to attribute the making of the American character to socialization rather than birth to locate the distinctiveness of American culture in its unconscious canons of choice and to view American culture and civilization in a global perspective

Generations of Women Historians Hilda L. Smith, Melinda S. Zook, 2018-07-11 This collection focuses on generations of early women historians seeking to identify the intellectual milieu and professional realities that framed their lives It moves beyond treating them as simply individuals and looks to the social and intellectual forces that encouraged them to study history and at the same time would often limit the reach and define the nature of their study This collection of essays speaks to female practitioners of history over the past four centuries that published original histories some within a university setting and some outside By analysing the values these early women scholars faced readers can understand the broader social values that led women historians to exist as a unit apart from the career path of their male colleagues

From the Modernist Annex Karin Roffman, 2010-05-13 In the 19th and early 20th centuries the majority of women were forced to seek their education outside the walls of American universities Many turned to museums and libraries for their own enlightenment for formal education and also for their careers In Roffman's close readings of four modernist writers Edith Wharton Nella Larsen Marianne Moore and Ruth Benedict she studied the that modernist women writers were simultaneously critical of and shaped by these institutions From the Modernist Annex offers new and critically significant ways of understanding these writers and their texts the distribution of knowledge and the complicated place of women in modernist institutions

Encyclopedia of Anthropology H. James Birkx, 2006 Focuses on physical social and applied anthropology archaeology linguistics and symbolic communication Topics include hominid evolution primate behaviour genetics ancient civilizations cross cultural studies and social theories

American Women During World War II Doris Weatherford, 2009-10-16 American Women during World War II documents the lives and stories of women who contributed directly to the war effort via official and semi official military organizations as well as the millions of women who worked in civilian defense industries ranging from aircraft maintenance to munitions manufacturing and much more It also illuminates how the war changed the lives of women in more traditional home front roles All women had to cope with rationing of basic household goods and most women volunteered in war related programs Other entries discuss institutional change as the war affected every aspect of life including as schools hospitals and even religion American Women during World War II provides a handy one volume collection of information and images suitable for any public or professional library

Reader's Guide to Women's Studies Eleanor Amico, 1998-03-20 The Reader's Guide to Women's Studies is a searching and analytical description of the most prominent and influential works written in the now universal field of women's studies Some 200 scholars have contributed to the project which adopts a multi layered approach allowing for comprehensive treatment of its subject matter Entries range from very broad themes such as Health General Works to entries on specific individuals or more focused topics such as Doctors

Democratizing the Enemy Brian Masaru Hayashi, 2010-12-16 During World War II some 120 000 Japanese Americans were forcibly removed from their homes and detained in concentration camps in several states

These Japanese Americans lost millions of dollars in property and were forced to live in so called assembly centers surrounded by barbed wire fences and armed sentries In this insightful and groundbreaking work Brian Hayashi reevaluates the three year ordeal of interred Japanese Americans Using previously undiscovered documents he examines the forces behind the U S government s decision to establish internment camps His conclusion the motives of government officials and top military brass likely transcended the standard explanations of racism wartime hysteria and leadership failure Among the other surprising factors that played into the decision Hayashi writes were land development in the American West and plans for the American occupation of Japan What was the long term impact of America s actions While many historians have explored that question Hayashi takes a fresh look at how U S concentration camps affected not only their victims and American civil liberties but also people living in locations as diverse as American Indian reservations and northeast Thailand
