Collections

Polymerization of 2-methyl-2-butene

This department presents the civilizations of the ancient Middle East, which date to more than 4000 years BC. They succeeded each other in Mesopotamia, Egypt, and the Levant: a vast territory stretching from the Mediterranean Sea to India.

References

Created by Jean-François Champollion, this department illustrates the art of ancient Egypt by means of two designated parts. The first is Champollion's, from the original in 1822, and the second is a drawing, highlighting specific aspects of Egyptian civilisation. Two additional versions, devoted to Upper Egypt and Roman Egypt, round out this collection.

Greek, Roman,
and Modern Architecture

This department contains works produced by the three ancient civilizations—Egyptian, Etruscan, and Roman. On the ground floor, a chronological path concentrates on notable sculptures from the gold millennium BC to the fifth century AD. On the first floor, the collection is organized by technique and type of material: such as bronze, jewelry, silverware, and glassware as well as terracotta, Egyptian and stone.

History of the Laboratory and Molecular Research

These two systems used an archaeological path present the archaeological history of the colony.

100

The collections in this department cover the history of European painting from the mid-14th century to the mid-19th century. They are divided into three large groups: the French school (in chronological sequence), the Italian and Spanish schools, and the Northern European schools (German, Flemish, and Dutch).

1000

This department encompasses European sculpture from the High Middle Ages to the mid-eight century. The collection contains French works for the most part, with a number of sculptures and panels from Italy, Spain and Northern France.

1000

The collections in this department – e.g. objects from the Middle Ages and the Renaissance, decorative arts of the 17th and 18th centuries, music from the 16th century to the 19th-century collection belonging to the French crown, 19th-century objects and furniture, and the Napoleonic III apartments – represent various different periods.

1000

On display in this department are works from Islamic areas including various countries in the Middle East, Bosnia, Iran, central Asia and India. Some items used to belong to the French royal collections. This collection is composed primarily of objects made of ceramics, metals or wood in addition to books, eggs, and paintings from the folk to the elite categories.

The Lerner Museum is mounting a new campaign to raise visitors' interest in the connection between design and art, design and modern culture.

As you proceed through the museum, you will notice an increasingly small and representative area of the collection to be followed in visits to the museum. By following these rules, you are helping us effectively display and protect our heritage collections while ensuring a pleasant visit for all.
