Religion, Politics, and Communalism Rakhahari Chatterji, 1994 Contributed articles      Religious Politics and Secular States Scott W. Hibbard, 2010-10-15 2011 Winner of the Charles H Levine Memorial Book Prize of the International Political Science Association This comparative analysis probes why conservative renderings of religious tradition in the United States India and Egypt remain so influential in the politics of these three ostensibly secular societies The United States Egypt and India were quintessential models of secular modernity in the 1950s and 1960s By the 1980s and 1990s conservative Islamists challenged the Egyptian government India witnessed a surge in Hindu nationalism and the Christian right in the United States rose to dominate the Republican Party and large swaths of the public discourse Using a nuanced theoretical framework that emphasizes the interaction of religion and politics Scott W Hibbard argues that three interrelated issues led to this state of affairs First as an essential part of the construction of collective identities religion serves as a basis for social solidarity and political mobilization Second in providing a moral framework religion s traditional elements make it relevant to modern political life Third and most significant in manipulating religion for political gain political elites undermined the secular consensus of the modern state that had been in place since the end of World War II Together these factors sparked a new era of right wing religious populism in the three nations Although much has been written about the resurgence of religious politics scholars have paid less attention to the role of state actors in promoting new visions of religion and society Religious Politics and Secular States fills this gap by situating this trend within long standing debates over the proper role of religion in public life      The Routledge Handbook of South Asia Adluri Subramanyam Raju, R. Rise of Extremism in South Asia Sadia Nasir, 2004

Religion and Conflict in Modern South Asia William Gould, 2011-12-05 This is one of the first single author comparisons of different South Asian states around the theme of religious conflict Based on new research and syntheses of the literature on communalism it argues that religious conflict in this region in the modern period was never simply based on sectarian or theological differences or the clash of civilizations Instead the book proposes that the connection between religious radicalism and everyday violence relates to the actual and perceived weaknesses of political and state structures For some religious and ethnic mobilisation has provided a means of protest where representative institutions failed For others it became a method of dealing with an uncertain political and economic future For many it has no concrete or deliberate function but has effectively upheld social stability paternalism and local power in the face of globalisation and the growing aspirations of the region s most underprivileged citizens

Islam in South Asia Asim Roy, 1996

Faith and Politics in South Asia Astha Chadha, 2024-11-18 This book explores the role of faith and politics in shaping the international relations of South Asia Adopting a neo classical realist framework and a discourse historical approach to analyze how religious actors construct their political identities and interests through the interpretation of sacred texts or exegesis the book makes several key contributions to the field of international relations It introduces the concept of exegesis as a novel analytical tool to understand the role of religion in world politics The book argues that exegesis is not only a theological exercise but also a political one as it shapes the worldviews values norms and interests of religious actors The author applies exegesis to three case studies of South Asia the partition of India and Pakistan the rise of Hindu nationalism in India and the emergence of Islamic radicalism in Pakistan and resurging signs of the same in Bangladesh The research then challenges the conventional assumptions of IR such as the secularization thesis the clash of civilizations and the rational actor model by showing how religious actors are not monolithic homogeneous or irrational but rather diverse heterogeneous and strategic. The book offers a nuanced and comprehensive understanding of the role of religion in world politics especially in the context of South Asia. Ismailism and Islam in Modern South Asia Soumen Mukherjee, 2017-02-07. This book explores the evolution of a Shia Ismaili identity and crucial aspects of the historical forces that conditioned the development of the Muslim modern in late colonial South Asia. It traces the legal process that since the 1860s recast a Shia Imami identity for the Ismailis and explicates the public career of Imam Aga Khan III amid heightened religious internationalism since the late nineteenth century, the age of religious internationals. It sheds light and elaborates on the enduring legacies of questions such as the Aga's understanding of colonial modernity, his ideas of India restructured, modalities of community governance and the evolution of Imamate sponsored institutions. Key strands in scholarship that characterized the development of the Muslim and Shia Ismaili modern and Muslim universality vis-à-vis denominational particularities that often transcended the restraints of the modular nation and state structure.

Decolonizing the Hindu Mind Koenraad Elst, 2001. Nationbuilding, Gender and War Crimes in South Asia Bina D'Costa, 2012-07-26. This book gives a detailed political analysis of nationbuilding processes and how these are closely linked to statebuilding and to issues of war, crime, gender and sexuality and marginalization of minority groups. With a focus on the Indian subcontinent, the author demonstrates how the state itself is involved in the construction of a gendered identity and how control of women and their sexuality is central to the nationbuilding project. She applies a critical feminist approach to two major conflicts in the Indian subcontinent: the Partition of India in 1947 and the Liberation War of Bangladesh in 1971, and offers suggestions for addressing historical injustices and war crimes in the context of modern Bangladesh. Addressing how the social and political elites were able to construct and legitimize a history of the state that ignored these issues, the author suggests a critical re-examination of the national narrative of the creation of Bangladesh which takes into account the rise of Islamic rights and their alleged involvement in war crimes. Looking at the impact that notions of nation, state and nationalism have on women from a critical feminist perspective, the book will be an important addition to the literature on gender studies, international relations and South Asian politics.
