Darwin and Faulkner's Novels M. Wainwright, 2008-03-31 Displaying a wide range of knowledge and interpretive skill Darwin and Faulkner's Novels reexamines the fiction of the great twentieth century American author from the interdisciplinary perspective of sociobiology Challenging the assumption that Faulkner's South was nothing other than a reactionary wilderness and charting the manner in which Faulkner learned and applied his evolutionary concepts this book unsettles staid interpretations of the Faulknerian canon and overturns habitual judgments as to the value of his later novels

Signalers and Receivers Michael D. Greenfield, 2002 In most terrestrial and aquatic habitats the vast majority of animals transmitting and receiving communicative signals are arthropods This book presents the story of how this important group of animals use pheromones sound vibration and light for sexual and social communication Because of their small to minute body size most arthropods have problems sending and receiving acoustic and optical information each of which have their own severe constraints Because of these restraints they have developed chemical signaling which is not similarly limited by scale Presenting the latest theoretical and experimental findings from studies of signaling it suggests that close parallels between arthropods and vertebrates reflect a very limited number of solutions to problems in behavior that are fiction but rather to study the ongoing flow and counterflow of influences including how fictional representations of science affect how we view its practice and disciplines. Although the main focus is on literature, other forms of science fiction including film and video games are explored and because science is an international matter, works from non-English speaking countries are discussed as needed. Coming of Age Cheryl L. Sisk, Russell D. Romeo, 2020. The chances are pretty good that anyone reading this book will have already experienced puberty and adolescence and therefore will have first-hand knowledge of the considerable physical and behavioral transformations that occur during roughly the second decade of life.

Animal Fiction in Late Twentieth-Century Canada Alice Higgs, 2023-11-09. Animal Fiction in Late Twentieth Century Canada fulfills a vital contribution to the conversation surrounding animal representation as a point of continuity in national narratives and supports the idea that focusing on narratives of responsibility and care influences better relations with both non-human animals and across settler-Indigenous boundaries. Alice Higgs engages with ongoing debates regarding reconciliation by demonstrating that it is imperative to critique settler colonial environmental frameworks and place autonomy back into Indigenous communities by bringing Indigenous practices of custodianship and relationality to bear more generally. This book also develops a number of conversations in animal studies in relation to the politics of representation. Higgs studies a range of canonical Canadian authors demonstrating a progress across the period in which it is possible to identify the emergence of a literary pro-animal turn. The Hair Story, The Outline of Science: The romance of the heavens.
