Statistical Abstract of the United States, 2008 Using the American Community Survey for the National Science Foundation's Science and Engineering Workforce Statistics Programs National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Committee on National Statistics, Panel on Assessing the Benefits of the American Community Survey for the NSF Division of Science Resources Statistics, 2008-09-11 The National Science Foundation NSF has long collected information on the number and characteristics of individuals with education or employment in science and engineering and related fields in the United States An important motivation for this effort is to fulfill a congressional mandate to monitor the status of women and minorities in the science and engineering workforce Consequently many statistics are calculated by race or ethnicity gender and disability status For more than 25 years NSF obtained a sample frame for identifying the target population for information it gathered from the list of respondents to the decennial census long form who indicated that they had earned a bachelors or higher degree The probability that an individual was sampled from this list was dependent on both demographic and employment characteristics But the source for the sample frame will no longer be available because the census long form is being replaced as of the 2010 census with the continuous collection of detailed demographic and other information in the new American Community Survey ACS At the request of NSF's Science Resources Statistics Division the Committee on National Statistics of the National Research Council formed a panel to conduct a workshop and study the issues involved in replacing the decennial census long form sample with a sample from the ACS to serve as the frame for the information the NSF gathers The workshop had the specific objective of identifying issues for the collection of field of degree information on the ACS with regard to goals content statistical methodology data quality and data products

Benefits, Burdens, and Prospects of the American Community Survey National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Committee on National Statistics, 2013-02-26 In June 2012 the Committee on National Statistics sponsored by the U S Census Bureau convened a Workshop on the Benefits and Burdens of the American Community Survey ACS the detailed demographic and economic survey that began full scale data collection in 2005 and that replaced the traditional long form in the 2010 census ACS data are used by numerous federal agencies to administer programs yet the ACS only moved from abstraction to reality for most users in 2010 when the first ACS estimates for small areas based on 5 years of collected data were made available Hence the workshop marked the opportunity to develop a picture of the breadth of the nonfederal user base of the ACS among them the media policy research and evaluation groups that distill ACS results for the media and broader public state and local agencies businesses and economic development organizations and local and regional planning authorities and to gather information on users experiences with the first full releases of ACS products In addition to covering innovative uses of the information now available on a continuous basis in the ACS the workshop gave expression to the challenges and burdens associated with the survey the time burden places on respondents the challenges of explaining and interpreting estimates with increased levels of variability and the privacy and confidentiality implications of some of the ACS content Benefits Burdens and Prospects of the American Community Survey Summary of a Workshop provides a factual summary of the workshop proceedings and hints at the contours of the ACS user constituency providing important input to the ongoing review and refinement of the ACS program The Census Bureau's Proposed American Community Survey (ACS) United States.
