Conflict and Reconciliation John Bowker,2008 Religions are involved in many long running conflicts around the world from the Balkans and the Middle East to Kashmir and Sri Lanka All that is well known Not so well known are the resources that religions can bring specifically and uniquely to the process of peace and reconciliation after conflict This book looks in detail at the ways in which the search for reconciliation is an obligation even a command in particular religions Religions understand reconciliation very differently and those differences are made clear in this book But the quest for reconciliation however differently it is understood is an obligation in religions that should be much better understood and employed by those who seek peace in the world Religion, Conflict, and Peacebuilding Stipe Odak,2020-10-27 This book provides fresh insights into the role of religious leaders in conflict transformation and peacebuilding Based on a large dataset of interviews with Christian and Muslim leaders in Bosnia and Herzegovina it offers a contextually rich analysis of the main post conflict challenges forgiveness reconciliation and tragic memories Designed as an inductive qualitative research it also develops an integrative theoretical model of religiously inspired engagement in conflict transformation The work introduces a number of new concepts which are relevant for both theory and practice of peacebuilding such as Residue of Forgiveness Degree Zero of Reconciliation Ecumene of Compassion and Phantomic Memories The book furthermore proposes two correlated concepts theological dissonance and pastoral optimization as theoretical tools to describe the interplay between moral ideals and practical limitations The text is a valuable resource for religious and social scholars alike especially those interested in topics of peace conflict and justice From the methodological standpoint it is an original and audacious attempt at bringing together theological philosophical and political narratives on conflicts and peace through the innovative use of the Grounded Theory approach Religion, Conflict and Reconciliation K. religion to fuel conflict Yet these religious traditions also promote peace and respect for others as key components in doing justice Examining the potential role religion can play in generating peace and justice specifically Christianity in South Africa s TRC is of utmost importance as religiously inspired violence continues to occur This book highlights the importance of accounting for religion in international conflict resolution

On the Significance of Religion in Conflict and Conflict Resolution Christine Schliesser, S. Ayse Kadayifci-Orellana, Pauline Kollontai, 2020-07-01 In this ground breaking volume the authors analyze the role of religion in conflict and conflict resolution They do so from the perspectives of Judaism Christianity and Islam while bringing different disciplines into play including peace and conflict studies religious studies theology and ethics With much of current academic political and public attention focusing on the conflictive dimensions of religion this book also explores the constructive resources of religion for conflict resolution and reconciliation Analyzing the specific contributions of religious actors in this field their potentials and possible problems connected with them this book sheds light on the concrete contours of the oftentimes vague religious factor in processes of social change Case studies in current and former settings of violent conflict such as Israel post genocide Rwanda and Pakistan provide real life contexts for discussion Combining cutting edge research with case studies and concrete implications for academics policy makers and practitioners this concise and easily accessible volume helps to build bridges between these oftentimes separated spheres of engagement The Open Access version of this book available at <http://doi.org/10.4324/9781003002888> has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives 4.0 license

Religion in World Conflict Jonathan Fox, Shmuel Sandler, 2014-02-04 This new book tackles two crucial questions First how does religion in its various forms and manifestations influence world politics Second how will adding religion to the discourse on international relations modify our theoretical understanding Each of these leading authors addresses different aspects of these questions in different contexts providing a diverse and multifaceted view of the topic Susanna Pearce and Tanja Ellingsen examine the religious causes of conflict on the macro level Several of the contributors focus on specific conflicts The Gaurav Ghose and Patrick James examine the Kashmir conflict from the Pakistani perspective and Carolyn James and Ozgur Ozdamar examine it from the Indian perspective Similarly Hillel Frisch examines the Palestinian Israeli conflict from the Palestinian perspective and Jonathan Rynhold examines it from the Israeli perspective Finally two of the authors examine other important issues Stuart Cohen examines the evolution of the religious view of war in the Jewish tradition and Yehudit Auerbach examines whether religion can play a role in conflict resolution and reconciliation These assessments deliver fascinating conclusions This book was previously published as a Special Issue of Terrorism and Violence

Tarusarira,2023-10-17 This Handbook explores the ways in which religion among the African people has been applied in situations of conflict and violence to contribute to sustainable peace and development It analyzes how peacebuilding inspired and enabled by religion serves as the foundation for sustainable development in Africa while also acknowledging that religion can also be a tool of destruction and can be used to fuel violence and underdevelopment Contributors to this volume offer theoretical discussions from existing literature as well as experiences of practitioners to deepen the readers understanding also develops an integrative theoretical model of religiously inspired engagement in conflict transformation. The work introduces a number of new concepts which are relevant for both theory and practice of peacebuilding such as Residue of Forgiveness, Degree Zero of Reconciliation, Ecumene of Compassion and Phantom Memories. The book furthermore proposes two correlated concepts: theological dissonance and pastoral optimization as theoretical tools to describe the interplay between moral ideals and practical limitations. The text is a valuable resource for religious and social scholars alike, especially those interested in topics of peace, conflict and justice. From the methodological standpoint, it is an original and audacious attempt at bringing together theological, philosophical and political narratives on conflicts and peace through the innovative use of the Grounded Theory approach.

Culture, Religion and Conflict in Muslim Southeast Asia Joseph A. Camilleri, Sven Schottmann, 2013. By examining the sometimes surprising and unexpected roles that culture and religion have played in mitigating or exacerbating conflicts, this book explores the cultural repertoires from which Southeast Asian political actors have drawn to negotiate the pluralism that has so long been characteristic of the region. Focusing on the dynamics of identity politics and the range of responses to the socio-political challenges of religious and ethnic pluralism, the authors assembled in this book illuminate the principal regional discourses that attempt to make sense of conflict and tensions. They examine local notions of dialogue, reconciliation, civility and conflict resolution and show how varying interpretations of these terms have informed the responses of different social actors across Southeast Asia to the challenges of conflict, culture and religion. The book demonstrates how stumbling blocks to dialogue and reconciliation can and have been overcome in different parts of Southeast Asia and identifies a range of actors who might be well placed to make useful contributions, propose remedies and initiate action towards negotiating the region's pluralism. This book provides a much needed regional and comparative analysis that makes a significant contribution to a better understanding of the interfaces between region and politics in Southeast Asia.

Religious Actors and Conflict Transformation in Southeast Asia Jürgen Rüländ, Christian von Lübke, Marcel Baumann, 2019-04-30. Drawing on a rich body of multimethod field research, this book examines the ways in which Indonesian and Philippine religious actors have fostered conflict resolution and under what conditions these efforts have been met with success or limited success. The book addresses two central questions: In what ways and to what extent have post-conflict peacebuilding activities of Christian churches contributed to conflict transformation in Mindanao, Philippines and Maluku, Indonesia? And to what extent have these church-based efforts been affected by specific economic, political or social contexts? Based on extensive fieldwork, the study operates with a nested, multi-dimensional and multi-layered methodological concept which combines qualitative and quantitative methods. Major findings are that church-based peace activities do matter, that they have higher approval rates than state projects and that they have fostered interreligious understanding. Through innovative analysis, this book fills a lacuna in the study of ethno-religious conflicts. Informed by the novel Comparative Area Studies (CAS) approach, this book is strictly comparative, including in case and cross case comparisons.

and bridges disciplinary research with Area Studies It will be of interest to academics in the fields of conflict and peacebuilding studies interreligious dialogue Southeast Asian Studies and Asian Politics
