Learning in a Musical Key Lisa M. Hess, 2011-09-15 Learning in a Musical Key examines the multidimensional problem of the relationship between music and theological education Lisa Hess argues that in a delightful and baffling way musical learning has the potential to significantly alter and inform our conception of the nature and process of theological learning In exploring this exciting intersection of musical learning and theological training Hess asks two probing questions First What does learning from music in a performative mode require Classical modes of theological education often founder on a dichotomy between theologically musical and educational discourses It is extremely difficult for many to see how the perceived nonmusical learn from music Is musicality a universally human potential In exploring this question Hess turns to the music learning theory of Edwin Gordon which explores music s unique mode of teaching learning its primarily aural oral mode This challenge leads to the study s second question How does a theologian in the disciplinary sense integrate a performative mode into critical discourse Tracking the critical movements of this problem Hess provides an inherited transformational logic as a feasible path for integrating a performative mode into multidimensional learning This approach emerges as a distinctly relational embodied multidimensional and non correlational performative mode theology that breaks new ground in the contemporary theological landscape As an implicitly trinitarian method rooted in the relationality of God this non correlational method offers a practical theological contribution to the discipline of Christian spirituality newly claimed here as a discipline of transformative teaching learning through the highly contextualized and self implicated scholar into relationally formed communities and ultimately into the world Bulletin of Bibliography ,1997

John Clare's Religion Sarah Houghton-Walker, 2016-05-06 Addressing a neglected aspect of John Clare's history Sarah Houghton Walker explores Clare's poetry within the framework of his faith and the religious context in which he lived While Clare expressed affection for the Established Church and other denominations on various occasions Houghton Walker brings together a vast array of evidence to show that any exploration of Clare's religious faith must go beyond pulpit and chapel Phenomena that Clare himself defines as elements of faith include ghosts witches and literature as well as concepts such as selfhood Eden eternity childhood and evil Together with more traditional religious expressions these apparently disparate features of Clare's spirituality are revealed to be of fundamental significance to his poetry and it becomes evident that Clare's experiences can tell us much about the experience of religion faith and belief in the period more generally A distinguishing characteristic of Houghton Walker's approach is her conviction that one must take into account all aspects of Clare's faith or else risk misrepresenting it Her book thus engages not only with the facts of Clare's religious habits but also with the ways in which he was literally inspired and with how that inspiration is connected to his intimations of divinity to his vision of nature and thus to his poetry Belief mediated through the idea of vision is found to be implicated in Clare's experiences and interpretations of the natural world and is thus shown to be critical to the content of his verse Pride, Faith, and Fear Charlotte A.
