Remaking Planning Politics Of Urban Change:

Remaking Planning Tim Brindley, 1996 Remaking Planning Tim Brindley, Yvonne Rydin, Gerry Stoker, 1989 This book challenges the view that planning under the Thatcher governments has simply been abandoned to market forces aiming to show that the interrelation of state and market is central to all current styles of planning Case studies ranging across the country are also presented The Politics and Ideology of Planning Tim Marshall, 2020-12-09 Planning is a battleground of ideas and interests perhaps more visibly and continuously than ever before in the UK These battles play out nationally and at every level from cities to the smallest neighbourhoods Marshall goes to the root of current planning models and exposes who is acting for what purposes across these battlegrounds He examines the ideological structuring of planning and the interplay of political forces which act out conflicting interest positions This book discusses how structures of planning can be improved and explores how we can generate more effective political engagements in the future The Routledge Companion to

Urban Regeneration Michael E. Leary, John McCarthy, 2013-10-30 In the past decade urban regeneration policy makers and practitioners have faced a number of difficult challenges such as sustainability budgetary constraints demands for community involvement and rapid urbanization in the Global South Urban regeneration remains a high profile and important field of government led intervention and policy and practice continue to adapt to the fresh challenges and opportunities of the 21st century as well as confronting long standing intractable urban problems and dilemmas This Companion provides cutting edge critical review and synthesis of recent conceptual policy and practical developments within the field With contributions from 70 international experts within the field it explores the meaning of urban regeneration in differing national contexts asking questions and providing informed discussion and analyses to illuminate how an apparently disparate field of research policy and practice can be rendered coherent drawing out common themes and significant differences The Companion is divided into six sections exploring globalization and neo liberal perspectives on urban regeneration emerging reconceptualizations of regeneration public infrastructure and public space housing and cosmopolitan communities community centred regeneration and culture led regeneration The concluding chapter considers the future of urban regeneration and proposes a nine point research agenda This Companion assembles a diversity of approaches and insights in one comprehensive volume to provide a state of the art review of the field It is a valuable resource for both advanced undergraduate and postgraduate students in Urban Planning Built Environment Urban Studies and Urban Regeneration as well as academics practitioners and politicians Handbook of Urban Studies Ronan Paddison, 2001 The Handbook of Urban Studies provides the first comprehensive up to date account of the urban condition relevant to a wide readership from academics to researchers and policymakers It provides a theoretically and empirically informed account embracing all the different disciplines contributing to urban studies Leading authors identify key issues and questions and future trends for further research and present their findings so that where appropriate they are relevant to the needs of policymakers Using the city as a unifying structure the Handbook provides an holistic appreciation of urban structure and change and of the theories by which we understand the structure development and changing character of cities ELINOR – Electronic Library Project Anne Ramsden, Mel Collier, Clare Davies, Anil Sharma, Dian Zhao, 2017-07-24 No detailed description available for ELINOR Electronic Library Project From New Towns to Green Politics Dennis Hardy, 2003-12-16 From the 1940s to the 1990s From New Towns to Green Politics charts the course of successive issues and campaigns from the reconstruction of Britain's war torn cities to the introduction of green belts and new towns to regional and community planning and so to the inner cities and most recently green politics Territorial Policy and Governance Iain Deas, Stephen Hincks, 2017-02-24 In response to both policy and conceptual debates alternative narratives have begun to emerge about territorial governance and policymaking As local and regional policy actors strive to respond to the geographically uneven effects of the economic crises of the early twenty first century a crucial question emerges what are the opportunities and challenges presented by alternative forms of territorially based governance and policy The aim of this edited volume therefore is critically to explore the opportunities and challenges presented by different forms of territorial policy and governance Drawing on conceptual debates and empirical research from the United Kingdom and other international contexts the contributors engage with issues around the politics and governance of territorial development economic development planning and regeneration and the environment Territorial Policy and Governance addresses the question of how alternative forms of territorial governance and policy can help to shape patterns of urban and regional development highlighting the related opportunities constraints and challenges that confront their operationalisation This book will be essential reading for international audiences with an interest in territorial development governance politics human geography and planning and regeneration Planning, the Market and Private Housebuilding Glen Bramley, Will Bartlett, Christine Lambert, 1995 Planning the market and private housebuilding is a timely new book which analyzes key contemporary issues in the light of the latest research findings and trends in policy and practice The relationship between land use planning and the housebuilding industry in Britain has long been characterized by intense debate and conflicting priorities about land supply The experience of the late 1980s and the early 1990s has made national policy makers and economic analysts aware of the crucial importance of the housing market for the whole economy and has once more put planning in the spotlight At the same time planning itself is undergoing significant changes and has been given a new mission in terms of the environmental agenda which may be in some tension with the needs of the housing economy The artificial boundaries between housing and planning have also been broken down by recent developments linking planning and social housing and stressing the enabling role of housing authorities The authors are based in leading research and teaching centres for planning and housing and they combine expertise in housing policy and finance industrial economics and organization and town The book grapples directly with some of the biggest issues How sluggish is the housebuilding industry in responding to demand How much does planning affect house prices

What would happen if we scrapped the Green Belt Do planning policies get implemented Do planning agreements for affordable housing make sense What would happen if mortgage interest tax relief were abolished The book is aimed at interested lay readers those involved professionally in the housing development and planning fields and at students of planning construction housing geography economics social policy and related disciplines While centred on the experience of the UK the authors bring to bear their knowledge of comparative experience and research in a range of other countries including North America and Europe Glen Bramley a specialist on housing and public finance is a Reader in the School for Advanced Urban Studies SAUS at the University of Bristol he was Deputy Director of SAUS for 1990-92 Will Bartlett is a Research Fellow at SAUS having lectured in economics at the universities of Southampton Bristol and Bath Christine Lambert is a Senior Lecturer in the School of Town and Country Planning at the University of the West of England Bristol and she specializes on planning and local government issues

Milton Keynes in British Culture Lauren Pikó, 2019-01-23 The new town of Milton Keynes was designated in 1967 with a bold flexible social vision to impose no fixed conception of how people ought to live Despite this progressive social vision and its low density flexible green urban design the town has been consistently represented in British media political rhetoric and popular culture negatively as a fundamentally sterile paternalistic concrete imposition on the landscape as a joke and even as Los Angeles in Buckinghamshire How did these meanings develop at such odds from residents and planners experiences Why have these meanings proved so resilient Milton Keynes in British Culture traces the representations of Milton Keynes in British national media political rhetoric and popular culture in detail from 1967 to 1992 demonstrating how the town's founding principles came to be understood as symbolic of the worst excesses of a postwar state planning system which was falling from favour Combining approaches from urban planning history cultural history and cultural studies political economy and heritage studies the book maps the ways in which Milton Keynes newness formed an existential challenge to ideals of English landscapes as receptacles of tradition and closed fixed national identities Far from being a marginal foreign and atypical town the book demonstrates how the changing political fortunes of state urban planned spaces were a key site of conflict around ideas of how the British state should function how its landscapes should look and who they should be for

The purpose of planning Yvonne Rydin, 2011-01-26 Planning is never far from the top of the policy or media agenda whether this concerns garden grabbing the location of wind farms or protests about travellers sites The operation of the planning system raises strong views even passions and is highly political Planners have to engage with developers working on multi million pound schemes and the local communities that will be affected by such schemes And throughout they have to work in the public interest delivering on broad policy goals and meeting the needs of vulnerable communities This book is about the way that the planning system works what it can do what it cannot do and how it should evolve to meet the challenges of the 21st century It looks at a range of issues to unlock the purpose of planning by being positive about the role of planning while remaining realistic about its achievements and potential Written in a clear and accessible manner this book will be essential reading for students studying planning in a variety of disciplines and practitioners engaging with the planning system

Territory, Identity and Spatial Planning Mark Tewdwr-Jones, Philip Allmendinger, 2006-09-27 This book provides a multi disciplinary study of territory identity and space in a devolved UK through the lens of spatial planning It draws together leading internationally renowned researchers from a variety of disciplines to address the implications of devolution upon spatial planning and the rescaling of UK politics Each contributor offers a different perspective on the core issues in planning today in the context of New Labour s regional project particularly the government s concern with business competitiveness and key themes are illustrated with important case studies throughout
