The Montreal Massacre Peter Eglin, Stephen Hester, 2006-01-01 The Montreal Massacre A Story of Membership Categorization Analysis adopts an ethnomethodological viewpoint to analyze how the murder of women by a lone gunman at the Ecole Polytechnique in Montreal was presented to the public via media publication over a two week period in 1989 All that the public came to know and understand of the murders the murderer and the victims was constituted in the description and commentaries produced by the media What the murders became therefore was an expression of the methods used to describe and evaluate them and central to these methods was membership category analysis the human practice of perceiving people places and events as members of categories and to use these to explain actions This is evident in the various versions comprising the overall story of the Massacre it was a crime it was a tragedy it was a horror story The killer s story is also based on his own categorial analysis he said his victims were feminists The media commentators formulated the significance of the murders in categorial terms it implicated a wider problem that of violence against women and thus the reasons for the murders were shown to be categorial matters As a contribution to sociology and as a demonstration of the significance of ethnomethodology for understanding social life the book reveals the methodical and particularly categorial character of how sense is made of events such as this and how such methodical and categorial resources are central to human interaction Advances in Membership Categorisation Analysis Richard Fitzgerald, William Housley, 2015-03-23 This is an exciting addition to the dynamic multidisciplinary field of membership categorization analysis Bringing together the biggest names in MCA this landmark publication provides a contemporary analysis of the field and a platform for emerging researchers and students to build upon The book sets out the current methodological developments of MCA highlighting its analytic strength particularly when examining social identity and social knowledge It provides a sophisticated tool of qualitative analysis and draws from a wide range of empirical studies provided by global scholars The culmination of years of international research this agenda setting text will be essential reading for academics and advanced students using membership categorization across the social sciences particularly in media and communication studies sociology psychology education political science and linguistics Disputes in Everyday Life Susan Danby, Maryanne Theobald, Loretta E.
