Building Capacity for Health Informatics in the Future F. Lau, J.A. Bartle-Clar, G. Bliss, 2017-03 Health information technologies are revolutionizing and streamlining healthcare and uptake continues to rise dramatically. If these technologies are to be effectively implemented, capacity must be built at a regional, national, and global level, and the support and involvement of both government and industry will be vital. This book presents the proceedings of the 2017 Information Technology and Communications in Health conference (ITCH 2017) held in Victoria, BC, Canada, in February 2017. The conference considers from a variety of perspectives what is required to move the technology forward to real, sustained, and widespread use, and the solutions examined range from improvements in usability and training to the need for new and improved design of information systems, user interfaces, and interoperable solutions. Government policies, mandates, initiatives, and the need for regulation are also explored, as is the requirement for improved interaction between industrial, governmental, and academic partners. With its focus on building the next generation of health informatics and the capacity required to deliver better healthcare worldwide, this book will be of interest to all those involved in the provision of healthcare.
