Wilson, Jose Bargas, James M. Tepper, Elizabeth Abercrombie, This volume contains articles describing research on the basic pre clinical and clinical neuroscience of the basal ganglia written by attendees of the 10th Triennial Meeting of the International Basal

Ganglia Society IBAGS that was held June 20-24th 2010 at the Ocean Place Resort in Long Branch New Jersey USA. For each of the preceding 9 IBAGS meetings the meeting proceedings were published conventionally as a volume in the Advances in Behavioral Biology series. These volumes were expensive, were published only in very small quantities, had very limited availability to both basal ganglia researchers and the general neuroscience community, were not available online, and the articles contained in each were not indexed in online searchable databases. Now for the first time IBAGS is taking full advantage of modern innovations in scientific publication and publishing IBAGS X as a Research Topics issue of Frontiers in Systems Neuroscience. The issue will be available online and is fully indexed by searchable databases including PubMed. Articles will include reports on the latest research on the anatomy and neurophysiology of single neurons and functional circuitry in the striatum, globus pallidus, subthalamic nucleus, and substantia nigra, as well as the latest data on animal models of basal ganglia dysfunction, as well as behavioral and clinical studies in human patients.

Mexico City Klaus Biesenbach, 2002. Living in a cramped space where Beverly Hills and Calcutta meet every day, the artists gathered here explore the tension between wealth and poverty, progress, stagnation, and improvisation, and between the violence and civility that animates the vibrant center that is Mexico City. Compounding the complexity of urban living, high rates of kidnapping, murder, and pollution become a daily threat. For the rich, the body becomes an object to be cared for, protected, even exchanged for ransom, while for an underclass of day laborers, homeless people, and prostitutes, survival depends on participation in physically exploitative situations that place an exact commercial value on the body. Alluding to recent art historical movements such as body art, process art, and arte povera, these artists use everyday objects and situations to form a complex dialogue about Mexico City and its relationship with the first world, focusing on the influence of the global economy on aesthetic values and daily life. Daniela Rossell's series of photographs Ricas y Famosas captures the endangered species of the rich and famous in their ornate and overprotective environments, and Francis Als documents people pushing and pulling their wares to and from the marketplace, leveraging their body weight against the commercial value they are physically dragging along.
