Wittgenstein on Words as Instruments J. F. M. Hunter, 1990-01-01 Wittgenstein believed that his writing should not save the other people the trouble of thinking for themselves In this complex little book the author attempts to demystify Wittgenstein while at the same time stimulating the reader's own thought on the use of words as instruments The book looks particularly at Wittgenstein's use of words and his distrust of philosophical questions such as What are we reporting about ourselves when we say we believe something It stresses the wide range of ways in which these questions arise and the care and perceptiveness that is needed to expose their limitations In a method derived from Wittgenstein it shows the reader how to handle difficulties about psychological words and gives novel interpretations of perplexing passages in the Investigations and Zettel Professor Hunter takes the reader through a series of difficult notions in an informal and thought provoking style and deals with an important part of Wittgenstein's work which has been little covered in the past Language, Reality, and Analysis J.N. Mohanty, 2024-03-11 The author applies the methods of latest linguistic analysis to the Indian theories of reality and the relation between language and reality Special attention is given to the Advaita Vedānta and the Buddhist theories The proper methods of philosophy according to the author is the logical analysis of language In these essays he shows how this method is fruitfully employed in Vedānta and Buddhist philosophies He also shows how the key Advaita concepts of avidyā and adhyāsa are results of logical analysis of ordinary propositional forms of cognitions and not metaphysical theses about a transcendent reality Of the eight essays collected in this volume five deal with Advaita Vedānta three of which directly interpret amkāra the two others interpret the great Advaita philosopher Vidyāraṇya There is also an essay on the logical basis of the Buddhist apoha theory The concluding essay on Spirit Machine and Man argues against the two extreme conceptions of man materialistic and idealistic and argues for the priority of a concept of person Appearances Matter Tim

Allender, Inés Dussel, Ian Grosvenor, Karin Priem, 2021-09-07 The visual turn recovers new pasts With education as its theme this book seeks to present a body of reflections that questions a certain historicism and renovates historiographical debate about how to conceptualize and use images and artifacts in educational history in the process presenting new themes and methods for researchers Images are interrogated as part of regimes of the visible of a history of visual technologies and visual practices Considering the socio-material quality of the image the analysis moves away from the use of images as mere illustrations of written arguments and takes seriously the question of the life and death of artifacts that is their particular historicity Questioning the visual and material evidence in this way means considering how when and in which regime of the visible it has come to be considered as a source and what this means for the questions contemporary researchers might ask
