Rural Development Strategy Eastern Europe And Central Asia:

Rural Development Strategy Csaba Csáki, Laura Tuck, 2000-01-01 With the larger role that the agricultural sector plays in the Eastern Europe and Central Asian ECA region emphasis must be placed on the sector's sustained growth and prosperity The Bank strategy for rural development in the ECA region during the early phase of transition emphasized the reform of agricultural policies and assistance in privatizing restructuring and rebuilding agriculture and agro industrial complexes In retrospect it can be seen that the ECA countries concerned made the right choice when they set their objective to transform their socialized agriculture into a private ownership and market based system Given the developments of the past decade it is clear however that the initial expectations for the outcomes of such reforms were overly optimistic The transition process in agriculture is far more complex than originally envisaged by both the countries themselves and the international community including the Bank Increased social problems and alarming growth of poverty have added a new unexpected dimension to the transition process As the analysis indicates the region's rural economy is still struggling to adjust to new economic realities and this will require further refinement and adjustment of the Bank's approach as well This volume based on an overview of recent regional developments summarizes the revised World Bank assistance strategy for rural development in the ECA region

Rural, Environment, and Social Development Strategies for the Europe and Central Asia Region, 2000-01-01 This report proposes a World Bank strategy for assisting the rural environmental and social development of Eastern Europe and Central Asia It has been produced for a general audience partly for consultation purposes and is therefore a work in progress Each of the three areas of development is examined in separate chapters and each summarises the World Bank assistance strategy in that area The conclusion is that the challenge posed by the objectives of this report are far beyond the World Bank's abilities to achieve on its own

Mapping the Rural Problem in the Baltic Countryside Ilkka Alanen, 2017-11-30 The agricultural privatization strategy adopted in Estonia Latvia and Lithuania was based on the premise that family farms are the most effective alternative to socialist large scale agriculture In addition international organizations particularly the World Bank made recommendations concerning reform speed synchronization and ownership rights that would facilitate transferring resources from large scale producers to family farmers This book provides a critical and comparative analysis of the implementation of this policy and in particular the strategy promoted by the World Bank The preservation of large scale production is the key to Estonia's success while its eradication from Latvia and Lithuania did not produce a family farm system Work productivity and the extent of plot farming are the indicators of success or failure Research findings on deindustrialization the hardships faced by new enterprises rural tourism increasing poverty and problems in the civil society as presented in this book shed new light on these and other key issues in transition strategy Forest Concession Policies and Revenue Systems John Andrew Gray,2002-01-01 Forest concessions have been an important element of forestry and forest management in many countries including developing countries However if sustainable management of tropical forests is to be achieved and deforestation brought under control the allocation management and supervision of forest concessions will need to be strengthened This study examines the failures of forest concessions over the last 20 years and highlights the potential gains resulting from concentrating on improving procedures introducing performance incentives and monitoring key performance elements

Towards gender-responsive agricultural extension services in Albania Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,UN Women,2024-06-27 This publication assesses the extent progress and challenges of providing gender responsive agricultural extension services in Albania based on the FAO Gender and Rural Advisory Services Assessment Tool GRAST methodology Even though agriculture is an important sector of the economy that accounts for 36 percent of overall employment in the country informality is high and the engagement of low skilled rural women in labour intensive activities is significant Women in the context of family farms are often considered to be unpaid farm helpers This assessment identifies the key gaps at national organizational and field levels that hinder the achievement of the relevant Sustainable Development Goals SDGs and the country s progress towards inclusive and sustainable agrifood systems In particular the absence of evidence based and sex disaggregated data does not allow developing gender responsive services driven by a sound understanding of the gender specific barriers that prevent farmers from accessing and benefiting from such services Moreover the lack of well articulated and mainstreamed gender and social inclusion policies for targeting and reaching diverse women and men clients reduces progress towards national goals and commitments Addressing rural women s access to information knowledge and services is essential for ensuring gender equality reaching farm efficiency sustainability and

Ukraine--review of Farm Restructuring Experiences Zvi Lerman,Csaba Csáki,2000-01-01 Restructuring has produced a definite favorable impact on labor relations and workers behavior in the reorganized farms Managers of reorganized farm enterprises give a much more positive assessment of the behavioral patterns of their workers than managers of non reorganized farms Agriculture remains the main source of employment and livelihood for the large rural population of many transition countries especially among the former Soviet republics Accordingly the World Bank continuously monitors the progress of land reform and farm restructuring in the region because of the potential impact of these processes on rural development and poverty alleviation in rural areas The present study on Ukraine is the latest addition to a long and growing series of World Bank publications on land reform and farm restructuring in the former socialist countries of Europe and Central Asia The unique feature of all these publications is their reliance on first hand empirical information collected through extensive farm surveys of various rural constituencies Farm surveys have been conducted by the World Bank in many countries of the CIS Russia Ukraine Moldova Armenia Georgia Turkmenistan Belarus and Central and Eastern Europe Poland Romania Bulgaria Hungary Albania Analysis of survey findings enables the World Bank to base its policy dialogue with governments in the region on solid empirical facts making the Bank s recommendation much more credible and relevant The new findings for Ukraine will similarly provide a platform for useful policy discussions with this country s government and supply the many international donors active on the local scene with essential information for the design of their strategic programs
